SINK SIX OFF U.S. COAST

Atlantic Shipping Terrorized By German Divers

PASSENGERS GIVEN TIME TO ESCAPE

U. S. Warships Bringing Victims to Port; American Vessel Is Stopped But Not Attacked

The European war has virtually been brought to the shores of the United States. In the vicinity of the Island of Nantucket, off the Massachusetts coast, one or more German submarines yesterday sent to the bottom of the Atlantic Ocean at least four British steamers and two neutral vessels—one Dutch and the other Norwegian. The sunken boats were the Stephano, Strathdene, West Point and Kingston, flying the British flag, and Bloomersdjik, Dutch, and Christian Knudsen, Norwegian.

So far as is known, there were no fatalities. The Stephano carried eighty-three passengers, all of whom were saved.

NEWPORT, R. I., Oct. 9.—It is reported without confirmation that three submarines were operating off the coast and that a total of nine vessels had been sunk by them. The executive officer of the destroyer Ericsson returning early today from the scene of the submarine activities off Nantucket, reported that nine ships had been sunk and that three submarines were operating off the coast. This information, he said, he had on the authority of the captain of the Nantucket Shoals lightship.

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 8.—The submarine arm of the imperial German navy ravaged shipping off the Eastern coast of the United States today.

Four British, one Dutch and one Norwegian steamers were sent to the bottom or left crippled derlicts off Nantucket shoals.

Tonight, the destroyer Flotilla of the United States Atlantic fleet was picking up passengers and crews of the destroyed vessels and bringing them into Newport, R. I.

So far as known there was no loss of life, though the crew of the British steamer Kingston had not been accounted for.

A submarine held up the American steamer Kansan, bound from New York for Genoa with steel for the Italian government, but later, on establishing her identity allowed the American ship to proceed. The Kansan came into Boston harbor late tonight for her usual call here.

The hostile submarine is believed to be the U-53, which paid a call to Newport yesterday and disappeared at sunset. Some naval men, however, declared that at least two submarines are operating close to the American shore, though outside the three mile limit.

The record of submarine warfare, as brought to land by wireless dispatches follows:

The Strathdene, British freighter, torpedoed and sunk off Nantucket. Crew taken aboard Nantucket Shoals lightship and later removed to Newport by torpedo boat destroyers. The Strathdene left New York yesterday for Bordeaux.

The West Point, British freighter, torpedoed and sunk off Nantucket. Crew abandoned the ship in small boats after a warning shot from the submarine's gun. Officers and men were taken aboard a destroyer. The vessel was attacked at 10:45 a. m. She was bound from London for Newport News.

The Stephano, British passenger liner, plying regularly between New York, Halifax and St. Johns, N. F. Torpedoed southeast of Nantucket, bound for New York. Reported still afloat late tonight. Passengers and crew, numbering 140, were picked up by the destroyer Balch and brought to Newport. The attack was made at 4:30 p. m.

The Kingston, British freighter, torpedoed and sunk southeast of Nantucket. Crew and destroyer searching for them. This vessel is not accounted for in maritime registers and may be the Kingstonian. The attack occurred at 6 p. m.

Bloemersdjik, Dutch freighter, torpedoed and sunk off Nantucket. Crew taken aboard a destroyer. The steamer was bound from New York for Rotterdam, having sailed last night.

The Christian Knudsen, Norwegian freighter, torpedoed and sunk near where the Bloemersdijk went down. Crew picked up by destroyers. The vessel sailed from New York Sunday for London.

The sensation yesterday when the U-53 calmly slipped into Newport harbor and as quietly slipped away three hours later, was nothing to the shock in shipping circles when wireless reports of submarine attacks began to come into the naval radio stations just before noon today. Within a few minutes the air was literally charged with electricity as wireless messages of warning were broadcasted along the coast.

The submarine or submarines had taken a position directly in the steamer lanes. Vessels of the entente allied nations and neutral bottoms carrying contraband of war scurried to get within the three mile limit of the American shore. Several that were following the outside course shifted and made for the inside lane. The Stephano of the Red Cross line, however, was caught outside the neutral zone.

The destruction of this vessel was perhaps the biggest prize of the day. The craft had been sold to the Russian government and would have been used as an ice-breaker after her present trip.

Up to late tonight, none of the British and French patrolling fleet had been sighted. The commander of the British naval station at Halifax refused to divulge what steps were being taken to meet the submarine attack.

To Care For Victims

The passengers and crews of destroyed vessels who were being brought into Newport were not expected to reach there until after midnight. Preparations to care for them had been made by Rear Admiral Austin M. Knight, commandant of the Narragansett Bay naval station, and Rear Admiral Elbert Gleaves, commander of the destroyer flotilla now at Newport.

Six Miles From Nantucket

The Stephano met a submarine six miles southeast of Nantucket lightship and was attacked by gunfire and a torpedo. She remained afloat until 10:05 o'clock tonight.

The West Point went down ten miles south of the Nantucket lightship. The Strathdene was attacked off lightship," the report stated, and the Bloomersdijk was sunk three miles south of the lightship. She remained afloat some time, going down at 8:05.

Steamer Kansan was held up three miles east of Nantucket lightship.

The first wireless warning of the presence of a hostile submarine in the steamship lane was given in the distress signals of the West Point. Within a very short time press dispatches from Halifax indicated that the patrolling battleships had received the alarm. The British censorship, however, prevented the disclosure of the movements of the patroling fleet.

At 11:25 o'clock tonight the returning destroyer nearest home was still fifty miles from Newport and she was not expected until after 1 a. m.

Why Big Rescue Party?

One thing that is puzzling naval men tonight is why the U-53 came into port yesterday, and another thing that is the subject of the speculation of many outside the navy is why a destroyer flotilla of seventeen vessels was sent out to rescue the crew of a single freight steamer. The destroyers were ordered out at the first report that the West Point had been torpedoed. Rear Admiral Knight reiterated this evening that Commander Rose's call was one of courtesy, but it was suggested that the German commander wished to guard against loss of life through the aid of American vessels in picking up passengers and crews of ships destroyed.

ONE SHIP HAD 83 PASSENGERS

Stephano Had Recently Been Sold to Russian Government

NEWPORT, R. I., Oct. 8.—The British steamer Stephano, carrying eighty-three first and second cabin passengers, including many American tourists, was sunk off Nantucket lightship at 4:30 p. m. today, presumably by the German submarine U-53. The United States torpedo boat destroyer Balch reported the loss of the liner by radio to the naval station here, stating that the ship had been torpedoed.

The message from the destroyer said that the crew and passengers were safe aboard the Balch.

Confirmation of the rescue was contained in a later message sent by the destroyer to the naval station here. It was said that she had picked up the passengers and later had transferred the Americans to the destroyer Jenkins.

Rear Admiral Knight, commandant of the Narragansett naval district, said that the passengers who had desired had been allowed to remain on the warship until morning.

Members of the so-called Newport society set were prompt to extend

HOUSE TO HOUSE CAMPAIGN TO RECRUIT ARMY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—Virtually a house to house campaign throughout the nation is being waked by the war department to obtain the 100,000 regular army recruits it will be necessary to enlist annually hereafter in order to keep the army up to the strength authorized by congress in the reorganization and appropriation bills. According to a new recruiting order made public today "to meet demands for the present and the immediate future, the recruiting service must be capable of furnishing annually an average of one recruit per thousand of population, and this result can be accomplished only by canvassing every accessible locality in the United States and establishing through the aid of available postmasters a conveniently located recruiting agency for each small area."

The new plan contemplates establishing such agencies in every county seat.

SUBMARINE GUNS ALARM SHIPPING

U. S. Destroyer Fleet Early to Rescue of Passengers

BOSTON, Oct. 8.—The booming of the submarine's guns was distinctly heard at Nantucket. It was plain that the submersible had placed herself in the lane of passenger and freight traffic and was terrorizing shipping along the coast.

In a flash wireless messages were sent up and down the coast and far out to sea warning everything afloat that a German ship was operating in the steamer lane.

Scurry In To Shore

Every vessel equipped with wireless was warned to make for the three-mile zone and the commanders of merchant vessels of the Entente allies lost no time in shifting their course.

Those that were following what is known as the outside course turned to the inside course that would bring them closer to American land.

British consular officers who had been advised by the British embassy to warn British shipping against the U-53, renewed their caution on learning that the submarine had gone into action.

Panic possessed the minds of shippers at points along the coast when the first reports of the torpedoing were received. The news that the U-53 had attacked British vessels traveled fast. Anxious inquiries were made at newspaper offices from seemingly almost everyone who had a friend on the water or owned a share of stock in a merchant bottom.

The Frederick VIII of the Scandinavian-American line, which is bringing home the American minister to Germany, James W. Gerard, and Mrs. Gerard, was 600 miles east of New York at noon today. Assurance that the ambassador and his wife were on a neutral vessel was given to inquiring friends by the press.

The radio stations were suddenly closed to the press by an order from the Navy Department at Washington. It was explained that everything learned by government stations must first be transmitted to the Navy Department before being made public.

Particulars of the attack, however, continued to come from merchant vessels to commercial wireless plants and through marine observers on shore.

Kansan Is Held Up First.

At daylight today the U-53 turned up southeast of Nantucket and got in the way of the American steamer Kansan of the American-Hawaii Company bound from New York to Genoa by way of Boston with freight. The Kansan was flying the American flag. She was stopped by the submarine at 5:30 o'clock. Assured that the Kansan was an American-owned vessel, the submarine later allowed her to proceed.

Captain Smith of the Kansan reported to the Shoals lightship that he had been stopped. He said the submarine showed no colors, but from his meager description of the craft naval men were satisfied that it was the U-53.

A half hour later the submarine encountered the Strathdene, commanded by Captain Wilson and under charter by the French line. A subsequent message from the Nantucket lightship stated that the Strathdene had been sunk at 6 o'clock this morning and that the crew of "twenty men" were on the lightship. The steamer carried a crew of thirty-four. There was doubt as to whether the lightship had picked them all up. The Strathdene sailed from New York for Bordeaux yesterday afternoon. She was of 4321 tons and 375 feet in length. She was built in Greenwich in 1909 and was owned in Glasgow.

Pursuing her hostile course, the submarine next came up with the West Point, bound from London for Newport News.

The fate of the British freighter was told in the following wireless dispatch from her commander, Captain Harden, to the naval radio station:

"British steamer West Point; stopped by submarine and fired upon; getting boats ready. Position 40:25 north, 69 west. Get cutter."

Later messages gave further details, one stated that the steamer was

FORCE RUMANIAN ARMY BACK TO PROTECT PASSES

Teutons Again in Possession of Larger Cities of Transylvania

BRITISH GAINS

Professor of History Is Now Forming New Greek Cabinet

Probably the most important development in European battle fronts is the forced withdrawal of Rumanian troops near Kronstadt, Fogars and Hermannstadt in the face of superior forces. Austro-Germans have recaptured Kronstadt, the most important commercial city in Transylvania. In the Dobrudja region, Russians and Rumanians are advancing southward against the Teutonic allies.

In Macedonia the contending sides have been engaged for the most part in artillery duels. A like condition prevails in the Austro-Italian front.

On the western front in France the British have captured all of the town of Lesars, and also made gains north and northeast of Courcelotte and southwest of Gueudecourt. Germans have recaptured trenches that had been taken from them north of Le Boeufs.

Lambros Accepts.

LONDON, Oct. 8, 11:10 a. m. (Greek).—A Reuter dispatch from Athens today says:

"Professor Spyridon P. Lambros, author of many historical works, member of numerous learned societies and occupant of the chair of history in the University of Athens, has been asked to form a service cabinet.

"The result of the latest attempt to form a cabinet is not expected to develop until Monday.

A later Reuter dispatch from Athens says that Professor Lambros has consented to form a cabinet.

FAIL IN ATTEMPT TO ESCAPE PRISON

Murderer and Girl Accomplice Foiled by Woman Convict

SALEM, Ore., Oct. 8.—Willard Tanner, serving a term for the murder of Ray Wallace in Portland in 1912, and Hazel Erwin, his accomplice, made a sensational attempt to escape from the Oregon penitentiary early today. The break was foiled by Mrs. Carrie Kersch, serving a term for manslaughter, who by screaming summoned the prison guards. Before attacking Mrs. Kersch, Tanner, with the aid of Hazel Erwin, overpowered, bound and gagged Nannie Williams, a negro girl.

The attempted break was the culmination of a carefully laid plot, by Tanner and the Erwin girl. Tanner had been missing for ten days, and it was generally believed he had made his escape by passing out of the prison with a crowd of visitors.

Early today Hazel Erwin and Tanner entered the room where the William's girl slept and bound and gagged her. Miss Erwin then walked into Mrs. Kersch's room and told her that the negro girl was ill. Unsuspectingly, Mrs. Kersch arose to give assistance. As she entered the Erwin girl's room, Tanner seized her by the throat. After a desperate struggle Mrs. Kersch broke away and ran to the west window of the dormitory, which faces the residence of Superintendent Minto, 25 yards distant.

"Mr. Minto, Tanner's in here," screamed Mrs. Kersch.

The superintendent, prison matron and guards heard Mrs. Kersch's cries and rushed to the scene. In the meantime Tanner crawled back into the latter room, where he had tunneled through a brick wall and hid on top of a large book case. The hole had been covered and it was some time before the prison authorities found how he had entered the women's dormitory. Finally Tanner was discovered.

According to Superintendent Minto, it was the plan of Tanner and his companion to subdue Mrs. Kersch and then overpower Matron Pope, take her keys away and unlock the door leading into a hall. From there a stairway leads to the first floor hall by which they could have emerged into the ground in front of the prison.

Hazel Erwin had donned clothes similar to those worn by Matron Pope and Tanner had obtained a civilian's suit.

That Tanner, since his disappearance has been concealed by the Erwin girl in her room, is the belief of prison officials.

ADMIRAL COOK, HERO OF SANTIAGO, DIES AT AGE OF 73

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Oct. 8.—Rear Admiral Francis A. Cook, U. S. N., retired, who was commended for "eminent and conspicuous conduct in battle" while in command of the cruiser Brooklyn at the battle of Santiago de Cuba, died suddenly at his home here tonight. Admiral Cook was born here in 1843. He saw forty years of service in the American navy and was retired in 1903.

PRESIDENT SILENT ON DIVER ACTIVITY

Will See Both German and French Diplomats Tomorrow

LONG BRANCH, N. J., Oct. 8.—President Wilson and government officials here expressed deep concern tonight over the sinking of the four British steamships off the American coast by a German submarine, but up to a late hour no official word had been received indicating that international complications would follow.

The government officials were plainly worried over the situation and made efforts to get all information obtainable. It was stated that the President would keep his mind open until definite information is supplied through sources.

The questions of administration officials centered around whether any Americans had been lost and whether the vessels had been sunk in accordance with international law.

To See Von Bernstorff.

With receipt of the word of the sinking of the vessels so near the American coast, additional importance was attached to the visit here tomorrow of Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador. While the engagement of the ambassador with the President was made to enable him to give Mr. Wilson a personal letter from the German emperor on Polish relief, it was taken for granted that the activities of the German submarine would be discussed.

Count von Bernstorff has carried on all his negotiations over submarine warfare through Secretary Lansing and Counsellor Polk of the State Department and it was thought unlikely the President would change the method of procedure.

An engagement was made today for the President to see Jules Jusserland the French ambassador, on Tuesday. While arrangements for his visit were made through the State Department, officials here took it for granted that he also wanted to discuss Polish relief with the President.

Eight-Hour Question.

The President has an engagement tomorrow to see Judge William L. Chambers, commissioner of the federal board of mediation and conciliation. It was understood that the investigation of the railways eight-hour law by the board named last week by the President would be discussed.

William F. Coombes, Democratic nominee for senator from New York, will take luncheon with the President on Tuesday.

Wilson spent most of today quietly at Shadow Lawn. He leaves Wednesday for Indianapolis, where he will make two speeches on Thursday.

"Pennsylvania Day" will be celebrated here Saturday, Wilson will make an address to a large delegation of Pennsylvanians, who will come to Shadow Lawn.

NEW JAPANESE PARTY IS FORMING CABINET

Platform Pledges Upbuilding of Japan; Kato Refuses Support

TOKYO, Oct. 8.—It is understood that Viscount Kato has declined to throw his support to Lieutenant General Count Terauchi in his effort to form a cabinet. The Conservative party, however, is expected to take a neutral position. Viscount Ishiro Motono, Japanese ambassador to Russia, has called his acceptance of an offer of the foreign portfolio in the new cabinet.

Partisans of Count Terauchi claim that the cabinet he is forming will survive the Diet of 1916-17, owing to respect for the emperor's choice and in the absence of a vital program of legislation.

The new party named the Kyodokl, or co-operative constitutional party, has adopted a platform pledging the propagation of constitutionalism, the strengthening of the national defense, the development of education and industry and the improvement of the local self-government, social and financial systems.

"On the termination of the war," says the party's platform, "it is certain that eastern Asia will be the center of severe competition by the world powers. Japan must be in position to maintain an equilibrium, to guarantee peace, to guide and protect China and also be able to defend herself in time of need."

FLEET OF DIVERS MAY HAVE REACHED AMERICAN SHORE

Merchant Submersibles Thought to Be Supplying Reserve Torpedoes to Fighters; So Far All Legal

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—Submarine warfare at the very doors of the United States does not necessarily portend further complications with Germany, so long as it is carried on within the limitation of international law.

That is the view of official Washington tonight on the record of one day's operations, in which none of the ships destroyed appears to have been attacked without warning or without proper measures being taken for the safety of those aboard.

But officials and diplomats see a situation filled with many possibilities, so long as commerce in and out of American ports is menaced.

The presence of a German submarine flotilla near American territorial waters may raise a serious issue if operations of the submersibles were carried on so near American ports as practically to constitute a blockade.

At the outset of the war, when allied cruisers hovered off New York so the United States, construing, their operations as practically a blockade, notified France and Great Britain of of its objections, and the ships were promptly moved farther out to sea.

Is There a Fleet?

Half a dozen ships have been destroyed practically within sight of the shores of the United States. A conjecture, generally accepted as the most likely, was that the submarine or submarines are accompanied by merchant submersibles of the Deutschland and Bremen type, loaded with torpedoes and ammunition. Many officials leaned to that view, and pointed out that one lone submarine 3000 miles from a base would scarcely have spent torpedoes so prodigally as Commander Rose today, unless there was a supply close at hand. Naval officials leaned strongly to the theory that probably a flotilla of Germany's newest U boats is off the coast. It was regarded as significant that German embassy officials, while disclaiming information, said they suspected there was more than one submarine.

It was openly declared that today's operations marks the opening of an organized campaign in the waters adjacent to America against all commerce of the allies. It is expected that attacks also will be directed at transports carrying troops from Canada.

Diplomatic representatives of the central powers declared emphatically that no vessels would be sunk without warning or before the passengers and crews had been given opportunity to reach a place of safety.

By tomorrow, it was pointed out, British cruisers probably would have warned incoming vessels and those planning to sail from this side probably would be held in port in many cases.

May Attack Tankers

It was pointed out that the fleet of tankers carrying oil eastward from the Tampico fields for the British navy might offer a tempting field for U-boat operations.

News of sinking of the many ships today drew expressions of satisfaction from the ranking Teutonic diplomats.

The dispatch sent to Count Von Bernstorff by Lieut. Capt. Hans Rose arrived today, but was said to have contained no information of importance.

The dispatch was upon one sheet of paper. Captain Rose opened by reporting his arrival, adding that he entered Newport to show his ship to the American navy, knowing that many ships were gathered there. The communication closed with the statement that he thought he might secure some supplies, should they be offered to him, and requested the embassy to pay any bills.

Count Von Bernstorff left Washington tonight for New York. Tomorrow he will go to Shadow Lawn, N. J., where he has an appointment with President Wilson. It is generally understood that the ambassador will present an autographed letter from Emperor William replying to the President's personal message regarding relief to Poland.

The only action taken by an American government official today was the ordering of the torpedo flotilla at Newport to rescue the crews of vessels sunk. That the navy department approved the action was indicated by the following brief statement issued at the direction of Secretary Daniels:

"A dispatch was received from Admiral Knight saying that the U. S. S. Jarvis and other destroyers had left for the vicinity of Nantucket Shoals vessel in answer to S. O. S. calls."

WOULD AMERICA RESCUE VICTIME

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—Should an extensive campaign be attempted in the western Atlantic, officials here are curious to know what policy the U-boats would follow regarding persons aboard the vessels attacked. It is pointed out that American war vessels cannot always be present as they were today to pick up crews and some officials believe that to make a practice of using the American fleet for systematic rescue work might be construed as unneutral.

In her note of December 2, 1915, Germany declared that "persons found on board of a vessel may not be ordered into her lifeboats except when the general conditions, that is to say the weather, the condition of the sea and the neighborhood of the coasts afford absolute certainty that the boats will reach the nearest port."

Whether this declaration was fulfilled in the attacks off Nantucket could not be fully determined on the basis of information available tonight.

In any case, there were indications that the American government would not be disposed to go deeply into that subject unless Americans were involved.

FIRE LOSS, $120,000 AT SEATTLE DOCKS

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 8.—The bay and grain dock and the gravel bunkers of Galbraith, Bacon & Co., at the foot of Wall street were destroyed by fire tonight, causing a loss estimated by the owners at $120,000.

The fire threatened the wharf and warehouse of the Booth Fisheries Company at the foot of Vine street, adjoining the Galbraith dock, but this property was only slightly damaged.

TOWING BURNING SHIP INTO PORT

Passengers and Crew of Antilla Rescued by U. S. Cutter

OLD POINT COMFORT, Va., Oct. 8.—Radio messages received here tonight from the coast guard cutter Antilla to Hampton Roads, and that the passengers and crew, which took to the small boats 120 miles off Cape Henry last night are aboard the cutter, which is convoying the two.

The message also asked that another tug be sent out to assist in fighting the fire.

The Onondaga reached the Antilla at 8:30 o'clock this morning, in response to radio signals early last night. The passengers and crew in small boats were picked up and transferred to the cutter.

The Antilla should arrive at Cape Henry about noon tomorrow. The extent of the fire is not known here.

NORFOLK, Va., Oct. 8.—The destroyer Ammen and the tender Sanoma left the navy yard tonight to go to the assistance of the Coast Guard cutter Onondaga, struggling to port with the burning liner Antilla.

SAIL DESPITE WARNINGS

NORFOLK, Va., Oct. 8.—Despite warnings of the presence of one or more German submarines off the New England coast, five British ships sailed today, each loaded with grain, foodstuffs and mixed cargoes. The vessels were the Sahara, Marioneth, Monkshaven, Homer City and Verdala.

DECLINES PRISON SENTENCE

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—Levin Shapiro, convicted of attacking a ten year old girl, given his choice of a twenty years penitentiary sentence or submitting to sterilization, decided today not to go to the penitentiary.

The scene of tonight's fire was the same as the start of the great fire six years ago which swept several blocks back from the waterfront.

Gospel Themes In Fresno Churches

Praises Work of Methodist Missionaries Among Heathen

Bishop Adna W. Leonard Preaches Here on Evangelistic Efforts in Many Lands--- Deep Faith Shown World Over

Exhorting his hearers to a fuller appreciation of the work being done by the missionaries of the Methodist church, Bishop Adna W. Leonard, presiding bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church on the Pacific coast, preached a missionary address yesterday morning to a crowded congregation at the First Methodist Episcopal church. "The Softening of the Heart of the Heathen" was the topic of the speaker, and the text was taken from the second chapter of the Epistle to the Hebrews. "But we see Jesus, who was a made a little lower than the angels—that He by the grace of God should taste death for every man."

"One needs but to stand in the presence of God's wonders in the world," said Bishop Leonard, "in order to have a deeper appreciation of the spiritual things of life. When we stand and behold all the wonders that have been placed in this world by Almighty God we are humbled and cry out, 'What is man that Thou art mindful of him.'"

It was the intention of the Creator that man should be supreme over all created things, declared the speaker, and such would have been the case had not man fallen from his high estate through sin. The scepter of dominion slipped from his hand and he became the slave rather than the master of the wonders of the earth. Man began to worship the sun and moon, he began to make representations of the beasts of the field and to fall down before them and worship them, and then it was said the bishop, that man fell into the depths of sin.

God's Love Covers World.

The writer in the text is endeavoring to counteract the thought of his day, the speaker declared. People found it difficult to believe that God's love covered each and every life and that every life was precious in the sight of God. "God's love is broad enough and big enough and deep enough to include every member of the human race, in the atonement of Jesus Christ. No man who has entered into deep thought of God but knows that there are no racial limitations to the kingdom of God and that God's love is inclusive of all men," said the speaker.

Gospel Solves Problems of Day.

The speaker pointed out that the writer conceived that there were problems of his day, and that he had a clear vision of those problems. The problems of today, capital and labor struggles, warring nations and similar struggles, were pointed out, the speaker declaring that the tenets of the great mass of the laboring world were becoming more and more based upon the teachings of Jesus Christ. The hope for the world, society, the nation, the Christian church in the solution of these problems lies in the spreading of the gospel of Jesus Christ, declared the speaker. The gospel is the only adequate answer to these problems, it was stated. "The day will come when the sermon on the mount will be practiced on the plain, and the problems of the world will be settled by the love of Jesus Christ. Unemployment, labor struggles, war and other great problems are as yet unsolved, yet in looking over this cataclysmic world I know the time is coming when the love of Jesus Christ will rule the world," affirmed the bishop. The gospel alone can solve the problems of the world, and the love of Jesus Christ alone can soften the heart of heathendom, that love alone can turn a heart of stone into a heart of flesh, said the speaker.

The world is becoming standardized, the bishop declared. The modern inventions and improvements that enable a man in one corner of the globe to communicate with another continent all go to make for a closer unity of mankind. When this world war shall be over, Bishop Leonard prophesied that the brotherhood of man in Jesus Christ would be greater and stronger than ever before and that scientific materialism of militaristic Europe would give way to a new faith in God, and that through retinos on that faith the end of war would come.

World as Gospel Field.

China, the speaker pointed out, is also feeling the effect of a great world change, and is in great need of the gospel. Japan, the Yankee of the Orient, now pagan, is yet feeling the influence of world standardization through inventions, new customs and progress, said the speaker, who declared that the greatest present need of Japan was the gospel of Christianity.

Work of Foreign Missions.

"We are too largely infidel in our faith," declared the speaker. "No man can confine his work and attention to his home without becoming spiritually dwarfed. Any church that closes in on itself will die. Let the individual think only of himself and his home and his vision is limited. The church that looks only to home missions and pays no attention to foreign missions is a failure. One of the greatest factors today in softening the heathen heart is the Women's Foreign Missionary Society," said Bishop Leonard.

The speaker declared that the world was richer and more blessed today because of the work done by the women of the missionary society among heathen women. There is a waiting world, said Bishop Leonard, hungry for the gospel. The story was told of a Korean woman whose interest in a mission meeting was so great that her son-in-law wheeled her 500 miles in a wheelbarrow to attend the service.

The work of the missionary society was described as consisting of two departments, the hospitals and schools and the religious instruction. "There are two sorts of religion that do not build hospitals for the care of their people," said Bishop Leonard. "They are heathenism and Christian Science."

Some personal reminiscences of Bishop Leonard served to drive home the realization of the work being done by the women missionaries in foreign lands, and the speaker closed with an eloquent tribute to the women missionaries.

"Salvation may be costly in human life," said Bishop Leonard in closing, "but it cost Almighty God His only Son to save us. Shall we regret giving ourselves to save others?"

SAYS PROHIBITION SENTIMENT STRONG

Bishop A. W. Leonard Says Saloon Is Doomed; Praises for New Pastor

Sentiment in favor of prohibition in California is becoming increasingly strong, according to Rt. Rev. Adna W. Leonard, presiding Methodist Episcopal bishop of the Pacific coast, who was a visitor here yesterday, attending the closing sessions of the women's Foreign Missionary society at the First Methodist church. "I have been noting the pulse-beat among business and professional men with regard to prohibition to a considerable degree during my travels throughout the state," said Bishop Leonard, "and I have found that a vast majority of such men feel that the saloon is doomed."

Bishop Leonard expressed the highest admiration for the incoming pastor of the First Methodist church, Dr. Will A. Betts, who will assume his duties here this week. In his morning address the bishop congratulated the congregation on their good fortune in securing such a man, whom he declared to exceedingly able as a clergyman and admirable as a man.

Bishop Leonard left yesterday afternoon for San Francisco, his home. During the next month the duties of his office will take him to Chicago, New York and later to Texas, in addition to conferences in this state. The bishop is president of the Epworth Leagues of the world, and will attend a conference of those bodies in New York next month.

On October 18 Bishop Leonard will again visit Fresno in his official capacity to preside over an "efficiency meeting" of all valley pastors here.

During his Fresno visit Bishop Leonard was entertained by Mr. and Mrs. J. A. L. Wells of this city. Wells is a nephew of the Methodist churchman.

REV. CLINGAN SPEAKS AT Y. M. C. A. SERVICES

"Man" Is Topic of Powis Baptist Pastor; Bible Forum Meets

Man as the created image of God was the theme upon which Rev. Fay M. Clingan, pastor of the Powis Memorial church, spoke to the men in Court House Park yesterday afternoon at the regular Y. M. C. A. afternoon service. The speaker declared that man should strive to measure up to the divine qualities that were instilled in him by the Creator, and stated his belief that war, the liquor traffic and other evils of the world were all due to the failure of man to measure up to those qualities. Rev. Clingan pointed out that there are possibilities of good and qualities of character in the lowliest being, and that even the prisoner in the jail has his possibilities for righteousness. Man, the speaker declared, has drifted away from his natural self.

The Y. M. C. A. Bible Forum met at the conclusion of the address. Discussion was led by Rev. A. D. Smith.

NEW BIRTH, TOPIC OF REV. TRAVIS

The necessity for a new birth if man is to accept salvation, was pointed out yesterday morning by Rev. Joseph B. Travis, the preacher-singer who has been holding revival services at the Powis Memorial Baptist church during the past week, before a large congregation. Interest in the revival meetings has greatly increased, it is reported, and several conversions have come as a direct result of his preaching.

M. E. MISSIONARIES END SESSION HERE

Bishop Leonard Speaks at Morning Gathering; Give Charge to Missionaries

A crowded auditorium greeted Bishop Adna W. Leonard at the morning service in the First Methodist church yesterday, when the head of Methodism on the Pacific coast gave an address to the missionaries, delegates and local members of the Women's Foreign Missionary society. Officers of the society were also speakers. Mrs. George B. Smyth of Berkeley, president of the society, presided over the gathering.

Yesterday afternoon the church was crowded with children, the occasion being the children's rally of the convention sessions. Mrs. Lulu M. Fiery of Pomona, superintendent of children's work, was in charge of the meeting, and again Bishop Leonard addressed an enthusiastic and receptive audience. The bishop told of missionary work in simple words for the benefit of the children, and the tots pledged support to missionary work at the conclusion of his talk. Mrs. Lucie F. Harrison, general superintendent of children's work, also addressed the children.

The ceremony of giving the charge to the outgoing missionaries occupied the evening service last night, and brought the five-day session of the Women's Foreign Missionary society here to an end. Mrs. S. P. Johnson of Pasadena, corresponding secretary of the society gave "God speed" to the three young women who will sail from San Francisco next week to take up their work in foreign climes. Miss Ines M. Marks, Miss Francena L. Bishop and Miss Lela E. Payton are the three outgoing missionaries. They will take up their duties in China and Korea. Numerous other missionaries on furlough will also go back to their posts in the orient shortly.

PROBATION WORK PUBLIC FUNCTION

H. A. Sessions Addresses Unitarian Congregation in Religion Prelude

That probation work can not be carried on with best results as a mere public function without the lively interest of the mothers and fathers of the community, quite beyond paying taxes, and having a probation office staff, was the statement of Probation Officer H. A. Sessions in the Community Religion Prelude at the Unitarian church yesterday.

"What we need here is what they have in Chicago, San Francisco, Oakland, Los Angeles, and other cities," said Sessions, "an organization of citizens quite apart from the juvenile court that will fight the causes of dependancy and delinquency in the community. The probation officer is hired to look after effects. He is not hired to fight the people's battles with first causes, and they cannot be fought unless the people fight them themselves. This community is not different from others in those respects."

Probation officers Sessions referred to the Juvenile Protective Associations and Child Welfare Leagues of other cities.

"The greatest gain of the probation work in recent years has been the addition of a woman probation officer for girls' problems," said Sessions. "One woman can do as much as two men with girls' problems, and do it better." Sessions continued:

"One of our greatest needs is another worker for the compulsory attendance part of our task. We have 148 school districts in this large county and it is too much for that present staff with all its other duties. This work will either have to go undone or partly done, or the staff will have to be enlarged. It was the school work and its necessities which led to the very formation of the juvenile court in this county.

"Another great need is a psychological clinic, such as they have in San Francisco, Oakland and Los Angeles, to examine children and find how far from normal they are mentally, and what treatment is advisable. There is no use punishing a child for being born abnormal, and yet the world is doing just that all along.

"These needs will not be met, perhaps, except as the people take an interest on their own account in children's work."

DR. DEERE FILLS PORTLAND PULPIT

Dr. J. Harvey Deere, pastor of the First Baptist church, filled the pulpit of the White Temple Baptist church of Portland, Ore., yesterday at both services. Dr. Deere will also speak in this same church next Sunday.

In the absence of the regular pastor, Dr. Vodra, pastor to the Latin-speaking people of northern California, took charge of the services in the First Baptist church yesterday. Dr. Vodra was formerly Baptist missionary in Porto Rico, which position he held for several years.

START EXCAVATING FOR SEWER TODAY

Equipment Is Set Up; 100 Men to Begin Work

One hundred men will today begin work on the construction of Fresno's new $330,000 sewer, W. N. Morrill, engineer for the Coast Construction Company, stated yesterday that one of the big "orange peel" excavators would be put in operation today about a mile beyond Fresno and work its way toward the city on the big 5 foot main trunk sewer.

Saturday offices of the company were partially fitted up at Monterey and O streets. Members of the office force will arrive today from Los Angeles.

"We will start work in earnest tomorrow," said Morrill last night. "At present we will only employ a hundred men, but within a month we expect to have a force of more than 300 men at work."

Practically all of the men who will be employed are local laborers and craftsmen.

CALIFORNIA MASONS MEET TOMORROW IN S. F.

Homes at Dacoto and Covina to Be Given Special Attention

Three Lodges in Fresno Are to Be Represented by Delegates

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 8.—More than 300 delegates, representing 577 subordinate lodges and a membership of 57,856, will be here next Tuesday to attend the sixty-seventh annual communication of the California Grand Lodge Free and Accepted Masons. The sessions will be held at the Masonic Temple, Market street and Van Ness avenue, and will be called to order by Judge Albert G. Burnett of Sacramento. The sessions will continue four days, closing with election and installation on Friday. From the advance reports of Grand Secretary John Whicher, a gain of 2,534 in membership was made during the past year, bringing the total membership in California to 58,000.

Six new lodges were organized during the year, Argonaut, Paul Revere and Alta Vista, at San Francisco; Mount Oso Lodge at Tracy; Center Lodge at Fresno, and Morgan Hill Lodge at Morgan Hill, Santa Clara county.

Masonic Homes.

Two matters of importance to the fraternity that will be considered by the Grand Lodge will be the approval of the action of the grand officers in awarding a contract for $91,000 for the construction of three brick and concrete buildings for the proposed Masonic children's home at Covina, Los Angeles county, and sanction an endorsement given to "Endowment Day," Thanksgiving Day, November 30, which has been designated as a time for raising an endowment fund for the maintenance of the home for aged Masons at Decoto, Alameda county, and the home for Masonic children at Covina.

The endowment is to be a free will offering by the Masons of the state direct to their lodges for use by the Grand Lodge, which maintains these homes. It is hoped to raise $1,000,000 by this means. This movement is to be made a great event in California Masonic history.

Next Tuesday evening a reception is to be tendered Grand Master Burnett at the Civic Auditorium. Admission for the fraternity will be by showing receipts for dues.

Ladies will also be welcome. A grand ball will follow the reception. The function will be under the auspices of the thirty-one local Masonic lodges.

In Honor of Eschelman.

On Wednesday evening after the conclusion of the business of the convention Redwood City Lodge, San Mateo county, will exemplify the third degree. Thursday afternoon following the annual oration by Grand Orator Samuel E. Burke, memorial exercises will be held in memory of Past Grand Master William A. Davies and the late Lieutenant Governor John M. Eschelman, grand orator. Addresses will be made by Past Grand Masters Samuel C. Denson and Harvey D. Loveland, a State Railroad Commissioner.

In the evening Occidental Lodge No. 22 will exemplify the first degree. Friday evening the first degree will be presented by La Parfaite Union No. 17 (the French Lodge).

Following are the officers of the Grand Lodge:

Grand Master, Albert G. Burnett, Sacramento; Deputy Grand Master, Francis V. Keesling, San Francisco; Senior Grand Warden, W. THREATS OF MORE STRIKES HEARD

Other Unions Want Congress to Give Them Higher Wages

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—Reports from various sections of the country indicate clearly that the Adamson Wage Law, which has been mendaciously termed "Eight-hour Law," is already bringing about additional labor troubles. Railroad men who were not included in the wage increase are being met with a refusal on the part of the railroads to grant an increase in wages on the ground that the added expense involved by the Adamson law makes an increase in wages to the great majority and more poorly paid class of railroad employees impossible.

St. Paul car men are approaching a decision to strike, and reports from Kansas City are to the effect that 32,000 members of the six railroad crafts have decided to go on strike as a result of the Adamson law. The following from the Kansas City Star tells the story:

"Refusal of twenty-two Western railroads to grant the demands of their shopmen resulted in a vote to strike by more than 32,000 members of the six crafts. Upon completion of the count of the referendum vote yesterday, A. O. Wharton of St. Louis, president of the railway department of the American Federation of Labor, announced the vote as being above 85 per cent for a strike.

"But a strike of the shopmen may be averted. The vote of the unions will be communicated to the railway heads with the notification that unless the demands are granted a strike date will be set. Mr. Wharton said the stand of the unions will be made plain. It was intimated the railroads are expected to reconsider the refusal. A walkout was not expected before thirty days, it was said.

"The Adamson bill providing an 8-hour day for the trainmen has proved a factor in the vote of the six crafts union leaders declared. Railroad officials decided at a previous conference they could not grant the demanded increase of five cents an hour because of increased operating expense forced upon them by Congress in the Adamson law. As a counter charge, union workers ask why they are not entitled to an increase when members of the four allied trainmen's organizations were accorded higher wages."

GOMPERS TO PROTEST ANTI-STRIKE MEASURE

To Condemn Carranza's Attitude Before Mexican Commissioners

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 8.—Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, came here today to protest to the Mexican members of the American-Mexican joint commission against General Carranza's attitude toward labor unions in Mexico, and to ask the American commissioners to take this phase into consideration in their conference with the Mexicans.

Mr. Gompers' complaint was based on a decree issued several weeks ago declaring that participation in a strike was a treasonable act and providing that the death penalty should be applied to anyone striking or conspiring to strike.

General Tasker H. Bliss of the United States Army, arrived here tonight to act in an advisory capacity in the study of different plans of border control suggested.

Going From Fresno.

Several officers and past masters of the three local Masonic Lodges of this city have left or are leaving today to attend the Grand Lodge of California, Free and Accepted Masons, in San Francisco, during the coming week.

C. A. Lisenby, Master of Fresno Lodge No. 247, William Dick, master of Las Palmas Lodge No. 366, A. L. Smith, Inspector of Fresno District, J. C. Pottle, a past grand officer and local inspector for many years, and J. P. Bernard, past master of Las Palmas Lodge, will leave this morning for the sessions. W. E. Bonnett will probably represent Center Lodge at the Grand Lodge sessions. Center Lodge has been holding meetings under dispensation for some time and, having fulfilled all requirements, expects to receive a charter from the Grand Lodge. Bonnett is master of Center Lodge.

Grand Lodge will open tomorrow morning in the Masonic Temple, Van Ness and Market, and will continue until Friday.

DO NOT OBEY COURT, SAYS LABOR LEADER

Andrew Furuseth Advises That Union Men Rebel Against Edict

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 8.—Andrew Furuseth, of union labor fame, yesterday told members of the Cooks' Union that they should not pay any attention to the injunction issued by Judge Hunt or any other judge against picketing.

President Emil Buhrer of the Cooks' Union replied that they would be sent to jail if they violated the terms of the court's order. Furuseth answered that a few days in jail would not hurt any man, and that it would not be for long before every court in the land would realize that it was legal to notify the public by picketing that an establishment was considered unfair to organized labor.

The present strike situation among the restaurants remains practically unchanged.

being shelled by the submarine when the message was sent at 11:15 a. m. A third message said that the vessel was attacked at 10:45, ten miles south of Nantucket. The steamer Kansan picked up the distress signals and proceeded to her assistance. The Boston navy yard at 1:30 o'clock received a message from the Kansan stating that the West Point was sinking and that the Kansan was going to her aid. The disabled vessel was then fifty-five miles distant and the Kansan was making 12 knots. Later a private dispatch added the information that the submarine, after stopping the West Point, ordered the crew into their small boats. The crew abandoned the ship, which was then torpedoed.

Meantime the American line ship Philadelphia, which left Norfolk yesterday for Liverpool, had gotten into the war zone and a S. O. S. message was received by her commander. He held his course for the east.

During the day, no word came from the British and French patrol vessels that have been watching the Atlantic coast. This afternoon a message was sent to Halifax asking what was being done to protect British and French shipping from the submarine. The British commander of the Halifax station replied he was considering the advisability of any statement.

Where Are Supplies?

Rumor had it that a fleet of German submarines was off the coast. Another that the Germans had established a submarine base on the Canadian coast. It was pointed out that the submarine, after ostensibly cruising the Atlantic unassisted, arrived at Newport fully provisioned for three months and not requiring fuel or so much as a jug of water.

Within the immediate zone of possible further operations by the U-53 are several trans-Atlantic steamships under registry of nations with which Germany is at war.

Better known among the vessels subject, because of their registry and their present positions, to the submarine menace are the French liner Espagne, from Bordeaux for New York; the Anchor liner Cameronia, bound to New York from Glasgow and Liverpool; and the Cunarder Alunia only a few hours out from New York for Falmouth and London. Other vessels of lesser size were reported approximately in the same waters.

Most of these steamships tonight have received y wireless warning of the presence of the German submarine off the New England coast. The result was indicated in messages tonight that this vessel or that was sailing in store to be within easy speeding distance of the three mile zone of protection.

Francis P. Leay, the British consul here, was in constant touch with steamship officials and on the strength of reports that the submarine had begun a wholesale attempt to destroy Entente vessels, a code message was dispatched to the embassy at Washington setting forth the facts as far as obtainable.

While Consul Leay declined tonight to make any statement, there was no doubt at the consulate that the submarine had come to American waters to begin operating off the Atlantic coast.

Warning To All Shipping

When it became known that the American steamer Kansan had been halted, telephone messages were forthwith sent to agents of steamship lines here, and the consulate endeavored to get into communication with every master of a British vessel along the coast. There was no attempt to disguise or conceal the fact that shipping had been terrorized by the daring performance of a German submarine, so far from its home base.

It was learned today that the embassy's warning had been sent to Halifax, N. S., the naval base for British ships operating in the North Atlantic, and to other points in the maritime provinces.

The British steamer Leonatus, without wireless and so cut off from possibility of warning of the submarine's is almost due here with a large cargo of sugar from Matanzas, Cuba. Her course would take her past Nantucket Shoals lightship.

The British freighter Isle of Lewis, carrying supplies for war purposes, sailed early today for Manchester, England, notwithstanding the U-53's visit to Newport. The Great City, another British freighter, deferred her sailing with a cargo of steel and horses consigned to the French government at St. Nazaire, France, but her agents said it was because of slow loading rather than any fear of danger.

The Ward liner Bay State from Liverpool, the freighter Hesperides, from Montevideo and the City of Naples, from the Far East, by way of San Francisco and the Panama Canal, were other British vessels now headed on courses that were regarded as probably crossing the path of the submarine.

U. S. to the Rescue.

ing the Jarvis, as rapidly as steam could be made, the destroyers Drayton, Ericsson, O'Brien, Benham, Cassin, Balch, McCall, Porter, Fanning, Winslow, Aylwin, Cushing, Cummings, Paulding and Conyngham, and the tender Melville. The fleet went to sea under full speed and naval officers did not expect the return of any of the vessels with survivors before a late hour.

The destroyers had orders from Rear Admiral Gleaves, commander of the destroyer force, to spread out and search for the ship's boats. He said that the object in sending this large number of vessels was particularly to facilitate the locating of small boats. Soon after the destroyers had departed Admiral Gleaves, who was directing operations from the flagship Birmingham which remained behind, received a radio from the Nantucket Shoals lightship saying that twenty members of the crew of the Strathdene were on board that ship. Instructions were immediately issued the nearest destroyers to proceed to the lightship and to take them off.

HIS DREAM WAS FULFILLED

Dream premonitions have always left me somewhat incredulous when they happen to other people. But they sometimes happen to me. The other night I had the vivid dream of a man walking toward me in the principal street of my native town. He smiled, we spoke a few words in the dream.

It was a man I hadn't seen or thought of for at least twenty years, and though I had completely forgotten him when awake, I knew him in the dream. You will guess the sequel. Next afternoon I encountered him at the front door stared as he mentioned his name. He had the same smile on. —London Chronicle.

HUGHES TO MAKE THIRD TRIP NOW

Will Travel as Far West as Nebraska and North Dakota

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—Charles E. Hughes, Republican presidential nominee motored to this city late today from Montclair, N. J., where he has been resting for several days.

Mr. Hughes will go to Newark, N. J., tomorrow to make an open air address at Military Park. He will return to New York later to register. He will leave New York at 6 p. m. Monday for Philadelphia where he will speak in the evening.

Tomorrow marks the opening of the candidate's third presidential campaign trip which will take him as far west as Nebraska and North Dakota.

ONE SHIP HAD 83 PASSENGERS

proffers of help to the shipwrecked passengers through Admiral Knight.

The cargo of the Stephano amounted to 3,000 tons. The vessel was in the regular service of the Red Cross line and was bound from St. Johns, N. F., to New York. She was due in New York tomorrow morning. Her agents were Bowring and company, Ltd., of Battery place, New York. She carried a crew of seventy-five.

Belonged to Russia

The sale of the Stephano to the Russian government, which had planned to use her as an ice breaker, was recently announced. Her sister ship, the Florizel of the same line, also has been sold to Russia for ice work.

It was supposed in marine circles that this was intended as one of the last of the regular sailings of the Stephano prior to her sailing for the White sea.

The liner was under command of Captain Smith, who had been in the company's employ for a number of years. He is 48 years old and he is known as a skillful navigator. Shipping men here conjectured that Captain Smith had taken the outside course on rounding Nantucket lightship and thereby had fallen like a ripe plum into the grip of the undersea raider.

Would Avoid Fog

Ordinarily the Stephano takes the inside course, if the weather is favorable. This takes her in water too shallow for a submarine and brings the ship within easy reach of the neutral three mile limit. At this time of the year, however, nights are foggy, and in order to avoid navigating in thick weather near shore in a well traveled shipping lane the Stephano, it was thought, took the outside course.

The Stephano was a steel screw steamer of 2143 tons, built in Glasgow in 1911.

Her sister ship, the Florizel, left New York Friday for Halifax, N. S., and St. Johns, N. F.

At 6:30 o'clock Rear Admiral Knight received word that several destroyers were on their way in with the passengers and crew of the Stephano, West Point and Strathdene.

DECLARE ALLIES HAVE LOST MILLION MEN

Germans Satisfied With Progress of Battle of Somme

BERLIN, Oct. 8.—The military critic of the Vossische Zeitung, Captain von Salzmann, is quoted by the Overseas News Agency in a decision of the Somme battle as follows:

"We know that France and England already have employed ninety divisions on the Somme, which means a million men, and that 500,000 of these ninety divisions are already disabled. Our enemies themselves give the number 500,000 as disabled.

"On the small sector of the whole front formed by the Somme, our troops have fought in proportion of one to three, perhaps one to five, and have withstood the attacks.

"We are now in the fourth month of the battle and the front has been made solid. There were certainly critical moments, but we conquered them. We stand firm and unshaken."

MOVE BUILDING TO SPITE CITY OFFICIALS

Mob of 300 Make Demonstration in Oklahoma Town

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Oct. 8.—Two councilmen of Oilton, Okla., were manhandled last night by a mob of 300 citizens who surrounded the Oilton city hall in a demonstration against the men, whom they held responsible for putting the town in debt for a waterworks plant.

The mob learned that the waterworks commission has enjoined Mrs. William Murdock, postmistress of Oilton from removal of her building to a point outside the fire zone. A rush was made for this two-story frame structure, which was lifted bodily from its foundation and carried by hundreds of men and boys to the site which had been selected by Mrs. Murdock. The mob then dispersed.

FIVE BIG BALLOONS LANDED FROM RACE

Two Travel Over 400 Miles; One Yet to Hear From

MUSKOGEE, Okla., Oct. 8.—Only one of the six big racing balloons which ascended here yesterday remained unreported tonight, while five had come to earth at distances varying from twenty-five miles to more than 400 miles from the starting point, The "Million Population Club" of St. Louis, with Captain John Barry in the basket, is yet to report.

Captain E. H. Honeywell of Kansas City, in the "Uncle Sam," and E. S. Cole of Cleveland, in the "White," apparently made very nearly equal records, something more than 400 miles. The former landed near Cascade, Iowa, while Cole came down near Charlton, in the same state.

U. S. SUPREME COURT CALLS WINTER SESSION

Will Face 700 Cases Today for Action Coming Term

Anti-Trust, War and Rate Litigation of Importance

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—Reception of a new associate Justice, John H. Clarke of Cleveland, O., adds unusual ceremony, observing century-old precedent, in the opening tomorrow of the 1916-17 term of the Supreme Court.

A full bench for the first time in almost a year will sit to hear an array of cases of national and international importance. Justice Clarke was appointed last summer to succeed former Justice Hughes. The new associate justice, the third appointed by President Wilson, was formerly federal district judge in Ohio and will take his oath of office tomorrow. He will be seated at the extreme left of Chief Justice White.

No opinions are to be given tomorrow by the court. The first decisions are expected next Monday, in the absence of President Wilson from Washington, the justices will forego their usual visit to the White House to notify the chief executive that the court has reassembled. Motions, however, will be received tomorrow and arguments will begin Tuesday on many cases specially assigned for immediate hearing.

700 Cases on Docket.

More than 700 cases await disposition. About 200 have been filed since court adjourned last June. Many government anti-trust dissolution suits under the Sherman law, entailing probable new interpretations of that act, are to be argued during the coming term. Of first importance among them are the government's suits against the so-called Harvester, Steel, Coal, Moving Picture, Kodak, Bill-Posters, Shoe Machinery and Great Lakes Towboat trusts.

Argument is expected during the week on the first of these—the federal attack against the alleged anthracite monopoly of the Reading, Lehigh Valley, Central of New Jersey and other railroads. The government lost the cases in the lower courts, as it did the dissolution suit against the United States Steel Corporation, which will be reviewed later.

The anti-trust suit against the International Harvester Company is to be re-argued. Other important cases set for re-argument are to test constitutionality of the Webb-Kenyon liquor law, the migratory bird act, the Underwood tariff act's clause giving five per cent discount on merchandise imported in American vessels under the "most favored nation" treaty provisions, involving refund claims of $26,000,000; Oregon laws providing for a minimum wage for women and a 10-hour day for men; a Louisville, Ky., ordinance segregating whites and blacks, and the Mann "white slave" act as to its application to cases having no element of commercialized vice. This latter question is raised in the celebrated Diggs-Caminetti case.

Appam Case

Europe's war also has brought new questions before the court. The first is over possession of the British liner Appam brought into Norfolk by a German prize crew and ordered by Federal Judge Waddill returned to the British owners.

Other important questions to be passed upon are suits from West Virginia and Utah challenging legality of the United Mine Workers' organization; Blue Sky laws of Ohio, Michigan and South Dakota, designed to protect investors from "wild cat" securities; interpretations of the income tax law; validity of the North Carolina liquor and Alabama domestic corporations tax laws; prosecution of the United States District Attorney H. Snowden Marshall of New York for alleged contempt of a Congressional investigating committee; federal water power rights on public lands; railroad land grants in Oregon and California, and numerous railroad cases entailing further application of the Hepburn, commodities clause, employers' liability and other acts affecting common carriers as well as intrastate and interstate rate regulation.

A case of special interest to railroads, to be re-argued, is over the so-called "railway mail pay advisor" suits, to determine a basis for computing compensation for transportation of mails.

Compensation Laws

The court now has under advisement, with decisions expected shortly, cases testing constitutionality of the first time of workmen's compensation laws, and their application, of Washington, New York, Iowa and New Jersey.

Other cases in which opinions are pending involve validity of Missouri's "short haul" clause, prohibiting railroads from charging higher freight rates for a short than longer haul; application of Massachusetts and Texas foreign corporations excise tax laws; power of federal judges to suspend sentence in criminal cases, and Pennsylvania suits against railroads for heavy damages for failure to deliver cars to shippers.

While the court opens its new term with more than 700 cases upon its docket, and approximately one year behind in its work, much greater speed in disposing of cases is expected. A new law enacted just before Congress adjourned, it is believed, will reduce the number of cases heard by the court from 25 to 33 per cent. This law will cut off appeals in bankruptcy, employers' liability and cases from the Philippines, together with many from state courts, except with consent of the higher court, instead of at the option of the lower court or litigants as at present. It does not, however, curb the court's power to order review of any case. The new law also adds another week to the supreme court week, requiring that it convene the first instead of the second Monday in October, and limits filing of appeals to the high court to three months, instead of allowing two years as at present.

FACE WAS ONE SORE ERUPTION

Covered With a Thick Scale. Skin Very Much Inflamed On Surface. Now Completely

HEALED BY CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"A small pimple came on my face and broke with a clear fluid coming from it, and it spread until it covered my face from my eyes down to my throat. I had three treatments with no relief and I had to leave school. The skin was very much inflamed on the surface and looked liked a piece of meat. My face was one sore eruption, covered with a thick scale.

"Someone told me to use Cuticura Soap and Ointment and I did so. My face began to look better and now I am completely healed." (Signed) M. G. Waterbury, Sanger, Calif., Mar. 21, 1916.

PROSPECTS

The reports of the close of registration make mathematically certain what was already evident enough—that the reunited Republican party will carry California this year by a very decisive majority. So far as the state ticket is concerned, this has been conceded from the beginning by everybody. The election of Governor Johnson is conceded by a majority which no one guesses so low as 100,000. With this election will go the success of the majority of the state legislature and of most of the candidates for Congress.

The only Democratic claim has been that there was a possibility of carrying the state for President Wilson, and this claim has been sustained not by any figures or exact estimates, but by rumors that Hughes might not receive the entire sum of the Republican, Progressive and independent vote. Various individuals, and various blocks and classes of votes have been pointed out which are in this total list and are claimed not to be for Hughes. From these reports, some of them perhaps correct and many of them invented, the conclusion was jumped at that the state might go for the Democratic candidate for President.

It is, of course, conceded in advance that Hughes cannot carry the state by so large a majority as Governor Johnson. In Johnson's favor are certain definite blocks of votes which are not for Hughes. Johnson will receive, for instance, a very large Democratic vote, while the Democratic vote for Hughes will be small. Johnson will receive practically all of the so-called labor vote, while on President this vote will be divided with the majority of it at this moment claimed for Wilson. Johnson will also receive all of the Progressive vote and practically all of the independent vote, while Hughes, though he will receive a large majority of this vote, and the proportion is increasing every day as the election approaches, will obviously fall short of receiving 100 per cent of it. Those differences make a wide and irreducible gap between the Johnson vote and the Hughes vote, which would mean, of course, that if Johnson were only going to carry the state by a small majority, Hughes could not carry it at all. On this assumption some Democrats have based unjustified and illusive hopes.

The answer is, of course, that the majority for Johnson is so enormously large that even with this fixed gap between the two votes, there is still a wide margin of safety for Hughes. Governor Johnson is campaigning the state for Hughes every night to the largest audiences which even he ever faced. His great majority and his personal influence are between them a guarantee of success for the whole ticket. When Johnson was nominated for Senator, Hughes was by that very fact, made safe in California.

The enormousness of the margin is well illustrated by the registration in San Francisco, the one place in California in which it is conceded that the advantage of Wilson is greatest and of Hughes is least. Out of a total of 177,310 registered voters in San Francisco, the Republicans have 102,179 and the Democrats 38,210. There are 30,099 declined-to-state and 4,183 registered Progressives, besides about 4,000 more scattered among minor parties. Of the declined-to-state and Progressive vote it is conceded that Hughes will get at least his even half. So his normal majority in San Francisco would equal at least the registered plurality of 65,969. The registered Republicans in San Francisco, in fact, have a majority of 27,648 over all others combined. Any estimates of the votes which Hughes might lack on one or another of various local issues or complications in San Francisco must reckon with this great margin.

Outside of San Francisco the registered showing is nearly as strong and the claimed deductions are enormously less. It is conceded that unless Wilson carries San Francisco by a very large majority (and on this showing he cannot carry it at all) there is no possibility of his carrying the state. These estimates are purposely made ultra-conservative, conceding to Wilson, for the sake of argument, not the things he is likely to get, but the things which his friends claim for him. The fact is that Hughes is the strong candidate, constantly growing, and Wilson the weak one, constantly losing. But taking for the sake of argument the exact opposite assumption, granting to Wilson the strength which his friends claim for him, and estimating against Hughes all the disadvantages which his enemies claim against him, it follows even then that the handicap would be too great even for Wilson to overcome. A Hughes victory in California is quite as certain as the Johnson victory. The only difference is that the majority cannot be quite so overwhelming, since in Johnson's case certain votes are included which in the very nature of things could not be obtained for Hughes. But the Hughes majority will be big enough to be decisive and significant; in fact, measured by any standard except the phenomenal one in which Governor Johnson's candidacy finds itself, the Hughes victory would be described not merely as decisive, but as overwhelmingly triumphant.

AT OUR GATES

The quiet little submarine captain, who dropped in to Newport harbor "to mail a letter," and then sailed out again, turns out to have been no mere peaceful messenger. He has brought the war nearer to America than it ever was before. Theoretically the place outside Nantucket, beyond the three-mile limit line, is as much a part of the high seas as any more distant location, and Germany has as much right to conduct legal warfare there as anywhere else. Up to this writing there is no news of anything illegal. No one was killed; the vessels were warned and the crews removed to open boats, which in that vicinity are "a safe location;" and the only American vessel was allowed to proceed unharmed. If these things had happened three thousand miles out they would have been legal. Therefore, theoretically, they were just as legal three and a half miles out.

But practically, of course, this war off our shores is a matter "of much nearer concern." Even within the limits of legality it becomes an intolerable obstacle to the exercise of our neutral rights. And if the attack should go even ever so slightly beyond legal rights, its nearness would enormously aggravate the wrong.

We shall doubtless weather this crisis. It is supremely one which "watchful waiting" could evade. But if war on this scale can turn up overnight, on our shores, is it not about time we gave up our hallucination about the safety of our isolation?

FOOLISH

Someone sent out a foolish dispatch from Chicago pretending to quote a speech of Mr. Hughes in which he was alleged to have come out for the repeal of LaFollette's seamen's act, and all the rest of the legislation of the Wilson administration. Of course, the thing was too foolish to be believable, but sundry foolish persons, perhaps for that very reason, did believe it. The Sacramento Bee therefore took the trouble to telegraph to the Chicago Tribune, and received the reply that the reference was not to LaFollette's seamen's bill, but to the McAdoo ship purchase bill, and that there was no reference at all to wiping out the rest of the Democratic legislation, some of which, in fact, was passed by the votes of all parties and is unanimously conceded to be good.

ASKS REPEAL OF ADAMSON LAW

(Special to the Republican.)

FORT WORTH, Texas, Oct. 8.—H. N. Pope, president of the Association of Farmers' Union Presidents, has issued a statement asking the farmers to urge their congressmen to repeal the Adamson law at the next session of Congress. Pope has also issued a pamphlet analyzing the effect of this law upon agricultural interests.

Pope denounced the law as offending the covenant which our government made with the people to give equal rights to all and special privileges to none. His statement says in part:

"The defenders of the Adamson law have had much to say about emancipating labor, but how about enslaving the farmer? If giving to trainmen is a virtue, is not taking from the farmer a crime? Has Congress the power to increase the expenses of industry many millions of dollars without some one paying the bill? If so, then Congress should immediately assemble and legislate all the people into idleness, and wealth. This law is unsound in principle, and unjust in application.

"If we are to extend this character of benevolent legislation to all railroad employes as well as to employes of all other lines of industry, it will take the American wheat crop to finance the Odamson law. This is an annual contribution that the farmers of the nation are not financially able to make and the only way to prevent it is to persuade our Congressmen, no matter of what political faith, to take this law off the statute books. The question is not whether this or that political party should rule, but whether Congress has power to take the wheat crop from the American farmer and give it to the trainmen, whether our government has authority to force one class of citizens to turn over property to any other class without compensation. If this character of legislation is permitted to inhabit our statute books, the property has no rights that Congress is bound to respect."

ABANDONS CITIZENSHIP FOR SAKE OF LAND SUIT

Woman Again French and So May Litigate in U. S. Court

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 8.—For the first time in the history of California, a woman renounced her citizenship to the United States here yesterday in the federal court. Mrs. Genevieve Lasserat, wife of a naturalized Frenchman, divorced in 1915, told the court that she did not know she was a citizen of this country and that she always intended to remain loyal to France, her native land.

Mrs. Lasserot brought suit against the People's Water Company to quiet title to land in Contra Costa county, which she has lived on for nearly forty years, and which she claims was acquired from the Contra heirs. The water company objected to her bringing the action in the federal court on the ground that she was a resident of the state and a citizen of the country, and not entitled to relief until she had first applied to the state court.

LAW TO STOP PANIC TALK NEEDED, DESPITE PROSPERITY

Fresno, Cal., Oct. 8, 1916.

Messrs. A. M. Drew, John C. Moore and Hayden F. Jones:

Gentlemen:—My attention has been called to an article signed by yourselves and addressed to me, which was published in the Sunday edition of the Fresno Morning Republican, and in answer to the question you propounded, I desire to say:

It is also true that I filed a bill asking in effect that where two or more individuals conspire against the government by making false statements for publication in regard to the financial condition of the country, for the purpose of bringing on a panic, that such persons should be guilty of a felony. My reasons for doing so are as follows:

During the years 1914 and '15 there was a conspiracy in the House of Representatives on the part of three leaders, one a resident of Illinois, one from the state of Washington and the other a representative from the state of Pennsylvania, to bring on a financial panic in this country. An unreal cause is as effectual in bringing on a panic as a real one. For instance, if the cry of fire is made in a crowded hall or theater, there will be a general stampede for the windows and doors regardless of whether there is a fire or not. These men sought to stampede the American people by causing them to think this country was on the verge of a great panic, expecting that a general run would be made upon the banks and thus bring on the panic desired. For weeks and months the parties to whom I refer lost no opportunity to make speeches on the floor of the House of Representatives and otherwise fill the Congressional Record with statements calculated to mislead and inflame the American people. The Congressional Record is the most widely read periodical in this country, many copies daily being circulated in each of the Congressional districts of the United States. These conspirators, day after day, filled the Record with false statements in regard to the number of the unemployed, how the soup houses of the country were being patronized and generally misstated and magnified conditions, always drawing as their conclusions that the country was fast passing into a frightful panic, all of which statements were false. But the hope of bringing on the desired result encouraged them on and they waited with impatience, and are waiting still, to see the country realize the misery which they fondly anticipated, and so actively predicted.

Knowing that men who conspire against this government in the manner outlined, in reality ought to be in the penitentiary, and fearing that if something was not done their continued efforts might bring about the desired result, I filed the bill in question.

I am proud to say that my bill at least had some effect, for the Congressional Record will show that after it was filed and its subject matter generally discussed, the conspirators became less active.

In conclusion, permit me to say that I have been declaring in all of my public utterances this year that there has been more good, remedial and progressive legislation enacted during the three and a half years of the Wilson administration than there has been during any other twenty-year period since the civil war.

Should either of you gentlemen feel like disputing this proposition, and especially Mr. Drew, my opponent of two years ago, I will cheerfully undertake to maintain my position in a one night's debate in the Fresno auditorium or elsewhere in the Seventh Congressional district.

Awaiting your reply with interest in regard to the proposed debate, I am,

Yours very truly,
DENVER S. CHURCH,
M. C.

WIVES OF DEMOCRATS WORKING FOR HUGHES

Many Noted Women Are Active in Interest of Suffrage Party

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—The most interesting group of women in the Woman's party is composed of wives of the Democratic leaders of the nation, women who put their own convictions about the political independence of women before their husband's party loyalty.

Mrs. Robert Adamson, wife of the Democratic fire commissioner of New York, one of Wilson's closest friends, is working with the Woman's party for the defeat of Wilson and his party. Her husband campaigned with Wilson in the last election and is ardently supporting him this time.

Mrs. Fred Howe, wife of the commissioner of immigration of New York and a Wilson appointee, is likewise working with the Woman's party.

Mrs. Meredith Nicholson, wife of the novelist, recently offered a diplomatic post by President Wilson; Mrs. George Middleton (Zoia La Follette), the daughter of Senator La Follette of Wisconsin, whose husband, George Middleton, is supporting the Democratic ticket; Mrs. John B. Kendrick, wife of the present Democratic governor of Wyoming, whose husband is running on the Democratic ticket for the United States Senate; Mrs. J. A. H. Hopkins, whose husband is the Progressive leader of New Jersey, who has gone over to Wilson; Mrs. Richard Lloyd Jones, wife of one of Wilson's Wisconsin supporters; Mrs. Gilson Gardner, of Washington, D. C., whose husband took a swing around the country in the interest of the Wilson campaign; these and hundreds of others are opposing their husbands' political preferences and are asking the women of the western states to use their vote to get suffrage for all American women, and they believe the shortest cut is via the defeat of the Democratic party and its leader.

New York Electors

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—The Republican state committee will meet here tomorrow to determine the final makeup of the party's list of presidential electors from this state. It was expected that Chairman Frederick C. Tanner would meet George W. Perkins today to settle the question of how many Progressives should be named, but the conference was not held.

Efforts are being made by Mr. Tanner to arrange for five days more of speech-making in this state by Charles E. Hughes. It was announced that the presidential candidate will speak in Albany with Governor Whitman on November 2.

National Chairman W. R. Willcox announced that he had called a meeting of advisory committee of the national committee to be held in Chicago Monday.

Mr Hughes, it was learned today, will appear before moving picture cameras at the Essex Country Club, West Orange, N. J. Saturday. He will confer there with representatives of the moving picture interests who seek to learn his views upon the question of national censorship. After the conference, the candidate will be filmed.

Fresno's Yesterdays

Taken From the Files of the FRESNO REPUBLICAN

Forty Years Ago Today

The wool interests of this county have become so extensive that the idea of an association for mutual protection and benefit very naturally presents itself. We ship our wool with all its dirt to San Francisco, where it is graded, repacked and shipped East. Perhaps no one point in the valley has so large a wool-producing section of country tributary to it as Fresno. Why cannot Fresno be made a point of shipment directly East. Mr. L. P. Clark, one of the most practical and successful wool growers in this county, suggests that an association be formed in Fresno—including among its members as nearly as possible every sheep owner in this part of the valley.

Twenty Years Ago Today

It is expected that Miss Susan B. Anthony will be in Fresno on October 9 to address the voters on woman suffrage.

Shanklin, William Glass, J. D. Gray and L. W. Cate.

Joe Middleton, the alleged ex-leader of the "Forty thieves of Traver," will have another chance to prove himself innocent of the charge of robbing the Portuguese sheep-herder's camp near Wildflower last June, as the jury has disagreed.

The boxing tournament of the Fresno Athletic Club last night drew a fair sized audience. (The Athletic Club occupied a building which is a part of the present Y. M. C. A. structure).

The Fresno Loan & Savings Bank files suit against Marcus Calus Pollasky, promoter of the so-called Pollasky railroad.

General Conditions.

During Sunday the weather again became threatening over central California resulting in light showers in the Santa Clara valley and along the middle coast. As at several other times during the ten-day period of bad weather, the distribution of barometric pressure within the field of observations gave practically no indication of the change in weather conditions. At 5 p. m. Sunday a very shallow barometric depression extended from Arizona northwestward through the interior valleys of this state, such as would under normal conditions have no effect on weather in this vicinity.

Advices of probable showers were sent throughout the raisin district at 6 p. m. Sunday. It is expected that the weather will continue more or less overcast during Monday with no more than a possibility of showers during the day.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 8.—Forecast: San Joaquin Valley—Unsettled weather Monday; probably showers; light variable wind.

ALL WRONG

The Mistake Is Made by Many Fresno Citizens.

Look for the cause of backache.

To be cured you must know the cause.

If it's weak kidneys, you must set the kidneys working right.

A Fresno resident tells you how.

F. E. Smith, Tulare Hotel, M St. and Tulare Ave., Fresno, says: "I was subject to dull pains in the small of my back, due to disordered kidneys. I used Doan's Kidney Pills and they acted directly on my kidneys, bringing relief." (Statement given January 19, 1913).

On March 29, 1916, Mr. Smith said: "I still use Doan's Kidney Pills when I have need for any kidney medicine and they always relieve me of backache and kidney trouble."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Smith has twice publicly recommended. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

FIRST THEFT OF RAISINS REPORTED

Half Ton Stolen From J. W. Porter Ranch Near Malaga

The first raisin theft of the year was reported to the sheriff's office yesterday. J. M. Porter, a vineyardist living near Malaga, had half a ton of raisins taken, presumably Saturday night.

Depredations by raisin thieves is experienced by vineyardists annually. In the past two years, however, the sheriff's office has succeeded in arresting members of gangs that operated extensively. Two years ago three were sentenced to prison terms and last year four were sent to the state prisons.

In addition to the effort made by the sheriff's office, the California Associated Raisin Company has a standing reward of $100 for information leading to the arrest of any one stealing raisins.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women as well as men take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the successful substitute for calomel—now and then just to keep in the pink of condition. 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

PREDICT UNSETTLED WEATHER TODAY WITH POSSIBLE SHOWERS

Continued unsettled weather and troubled skies with possible local showers is the prediction of Forecaster W. E. Bonnett for today. Advices of probable showers were sent out from the weather bureau here to all the raisin districts at 6 p. m. yesterday, and the growers were advised to stack what trays were out in the open. It is expected that the weather will continue more or less overcast today with a bare possibility of showers today.

Yesterday the weather again became threatening over central California, resulting in light showers in the Santa Clara valley and along the middle coast. The distribution of barometric pressure within the field of observation gave practically no indication of a change in weather conditions, as has been the case several other times during the ten-day period of bad weather.

Seven Negroes Is Unlucky Number for Social "Crap Game"

"Come on, Phoebe," "Git away, git away, box car," "Roll over dere, Big Dick, you don't look like a seben."

These and others. Detectives Castner and Brand investigated. Their suspicion was confirmed when they found seven negroes "entreatin' de bones." They were arrested for gambling. They were Harry Weeks, George Sanders, Zack Martin, Harry Ward, Jim Franklin, Walter Barnes and George Wolf.

PHILLIPS' TOUR OF OIL DISTRICT

Cordial Greeting Given to Republican Nominee in Kern County.

BAKERSFIELD, Oct. 8.—W. W. Phillips, Republican nominee for Congress, put in one of the busiest days of the campaign thus far yesterday. Lenving Taft, where he made three speeches, last night, the nominee struck out on a busy schedule that took him straight up the West Side oil fields, taking in Fellows, where he met many voters at 9 o'clock, McKittrick at 11 a. m. Reward at noon, Belridge at 2 p. m., Lost Hills at 4 p. m., Wasco at 6:30 p. m. The total distance covered was more than 90 miles, and it was late when the party traveling in two machines, reached Bakersfield, but the sentiment was unanimous that it was one of the most profitable days experienced.

It was through heavy showers and part way over slippery, muddy roads that the party reached Taft at 6 o'clock Friday night. Taft, the metropolis of the West Side oil fields, turned out a crowd of upwards of 100. It surrounded the entrance of the hotel in the main street and listened attentively for 30 minutes while Phillips spoke from his motor car. His talk was devoted principally to the question of relief legislation for the oil interests affected by the withdrawal act of 1909. The Republican nominee was introduced by H. H. Bell of Taft, an attorney and member of the Kern County Republican central committee. Applause at the close of his talk was enthusiastic. Phillips spoke earnestly and was convincing in manner. He showed a fighting spirit that is developing a spirited aggressiveness as the itinerary lengthens.

Just for good measure and to wind up a busy day, Phillips talked to two large audiences at two motion picture theaters in Taft. He spoke on the oil remedial legislation, the tariff and flayed the Democratic administration for its failure to make good in its platform promise to reduce the high cost of living.

Saturday's schedule was largely a hand to hand meeting with the oil land owners. The superintendents of the big leases, drillers, tool dressers and employes generally.

"I promised after being nominated, to carry the story of Democratic failure of the last four years into every corner of this district, and I'm living up to that promise," Phillips declared to a crowd at Belridge.

"Go to it Billy," shouted a man in the audience, "you're setting a hot pace."

Goodcell of San Bernardino, the national grand president, will be a guest of the aerie. A large motor caravan of Eagles will drive up from Los Angeles. Delegations from Fresno, Porterville, Tulare, Hanford, Visalia and Coalinga aeries will be in attendance. J. R. Dorsey, past worthy president of the California state aerie, will be toastmaster.

SEEK RELATIVES OF FRANK GROSS

Relatives of the late Frank Goss, who died at the county hospital last Friday, are being sought by Curtis W. Beall, who has charge of the remains. Gross was 60 years of age, a native of Pennsylvania and for many years a resident of the Academy country. By occupation he was a miner. Although generally known by people of Academy none know the name of his relatives, who are thought to be living in this section of the state.

WEATHER AFFECTS FAIR ATTENDANCE

Range Sports Are Feature of Closing Day of Annual Show

HANFORD, Oct. 8.—Kings county's annual fair came to an end Saturday evening. The weather was bad throughout the seven days the fair was open, and though no rain fell on the last two days, the conditions were threatening, keeping the attendance below normal. A large delegation from Visalia attended, arrangements for the party being made by Ben Maddox of that city. They traveled by automobile, more than a score of cars carrying the visitors.

Broncho busting, bull riding and wild mule races were held on the track during the afternoon.

PACKING CO. TO INCREASE CAPITAL

HANFORD, Oct. 8.—The Kings County Packing Company of Armona, will increase its capital from $100,000 to $250,000. Shareholders of the concern met here yesterday and voted unanimously in favor of a resolution to that effect. The company operates the largest private co-operative packing concern in the state. It is the pioneer of the canned raisin. Its plant at Armona is one of the most modern in the state, while it employs a large number of people almost the whole year round.

GUN DISCHARGED; BOY IS INJURED

HANFORD, Oct. 8.—Melvin Rucker, 14-year-old son of E. S. Rucker of Lemoore, is lying in the hospital here in a serious condition as the result of a bullet wound sustained Saturday. He was reported to be resting easily late this evening.

Rucker was struck by the accidental discharge of a .22 calibre rifle, the bullet passing through the stomach. He was operated upon late last night.

DEMOCRATS PLAN PATTON MEETING

HANFORD, Oct. 8.—George S. Patton, Democratic candidate for Congress from the Seventh district, will speak here on October 17, next. Plans are now being made by the Democrats for a big meeting to be held on that date.

SOCIETY NOTES

More than fifty persons witnessed the marriage Saturday of Dillon Wilkins, a Fresno mail carrier, and Miss Leora Hollingshead, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Hollingshead, of this city. Following the marriage ceremony, which was performed by Rev. Duncan Wallace, the bridal pair led the way to the dining room, where a repast was served. The newly married couple received numerous presents of cut glass, linen and silver. Following a honeymoon trip Mr. and Mrs. Wilkins will make their home at 2105 Eunice street.

SWEDISH TRADE TO ENGLAND STOPS

STOCKHOLM, via London, Oct. 8.—The stipulation by the British authorities requiring the signing of a certificate to the effect that no enemy interest is involved in the case of goods exported to Great Britain has caused temporarily a complete stoppage of Swedish exports to that country. Under the war trade act Swedish shippers cannot give a guarantee to a foreign power. Five steamers now are held at Gothenburg.

FALSE PRETENSE IN LAW-MAKING SCORED

James R. Garfield Denounces Bluffing of Democratic Leaders

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 8.—The Adamson bill, the so-called eight-hour law, and Democratic legislation on child labor, were severely scored by James R. Garfield, son of the former President, in speeches made in this city.

"It is a certainty," Garfield said, "that the voters are realizing that there is nothing but pretense and political expediency in the legislation which has been enacted by President Wilson's direction. The Adamson eight-hour law has already been torn to pieces and labor throughout the country is rapidly realizing that it is not what it purports to be.

"It is interesting, also, to note that the women have been aroused to the Democratic legislation on child labor, which, it is easily shown, was one of subterfuge. The law is one that is so full of jokers that it is no law at all."

Garfield spoke at length on child labor legislation, and Mrs. Katherine Phillips Edson, secretary of the California industrial welfare commission, presided.

Addressing the guests that attended the Fairbanks luncheon, he counseled his auditors to "put out an administration of dishonor and contempt and restore an administration of dignity and honor."

He also pleaded for the election of the Republican candidates for legislative positions and expressed the hope that "your great governor will represent California in the United States Senate."

HONOLULU, T. H., Oct. 8.—Returns today from yesterday's territorial primary election indicate that the Republicans nominated J. Kuhio Kalanianaole for territorial delegate to Congress and the Democrats chose Lincoln C. McCandless. The Republican vote outnumbered the Democratic one three to one.

"NE'ER-DO-WELL," MUSICAL COMEDY, AT WHITE TONIGHT

Ed Redmond, now playing at White Theater in the "Ne'er-Do-Well"

"The Ne'er-Do Well," Rex Beach's powerful tale of Panama life, as presented by the Redmond company at the White Theater with music, pretty girls, beautiful scenic production, new songs and dances and pretty costumes, is the second weeks bill and was well received by a crowded house last night. It will run up to Wednesday night, inclusive, this week. Thursday night the bill will be changed and "Merely Mary Ann" set to music will be presented.

Roscoe Karns takes the leading role of "Kirk Anthony," giving a keen performance, showing in a delightful way the transition from a carefree boy to one eager to enter the business world when love is awakened through the person of Mrs. Cortland, a woman of intellect and refinement. This role is played by Miss Mary Newton in a most satisfying manner. Ed Redmond appears as Anthony, Sr., and his gusto adds much to the spirit of the performance. Miss Ruth Renicke as Stella Weeks, the hero-worshiping girl, is splendid, her cute mannerisms fitting the role perfectly. Hugh Metcalf, Jay Morley and the balance of the big cast, not overlooking Bert Chapman, who comes mighty close to capturing the stellar honors in his characterization of Alfarez, all aid in making the best the Redmonds have given.

Play of Cohan Order

In construction the play looks as though Geo. M. Cohan had a hand in the making, for the waving of the Stars and Stripes and speeches to the effect that if our southern neighbors did not behave a handful of Americans will come down and dump every last one of them into the ocean stirs the patriotic spirit and it was cheers instead of the usual applause that greeted each of the big situations in last evening's performance at the White Theater.

Beach Story Admirably Suited To Musical Adaptation

The Beach story is admirably suited for musical comedy and under the hand of the late Chas. Klein a play has been made that is even bound to exceed the popularity of the book.

The story provides an excellent role for each of the Redmond players and the musical numbers are a big feature of the performance.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN APPEARS AS BOGUS COUNT

Chaplin, who will set all Fresno laughing today.

The funniest of the funnies this week in Fresno is Charlie Chaplin's latest, "The Count," which is at the old business of wholesome laugh-making.

Chaplin Seen in Famous "Make-Up."

The inimitable Charlie is seen in his familiar baggy trousers, cutaway coat at least two sizes too small, his dinky derby, diminutive moustache and slender cane, not forgetting the celebrated brogans. Fat men particularly should not see this picture as they loosen the screws in the seats; but if there is anything in the ancient quotation "laugh and grow fat," thin persons will perceptibly increase their embonpoint.

"The Count" has story, speed and fun that just bubbles out. It's chuck full of original Chaplin antics and jammed with surprises. In order to handle the large crowds that are eager to see Chaplin's new comedy, the Fresno Photo will open this morning at 10 o'clock. Matinee prices are 10 cents for adults and 5 cents for children.

"Fantomas" Sensational Play.

The second picture of the fascinating "Fantomas" series called "The Man in Black" will be seen today.

The adventures of the Master Crook of fiction and his escape from the hand of justice and from his just deserts are making a strong appeal to the public. One of the big features of the play is the collision between a car running wild and an express train. There is not a nerve that will not labor under the thrills which the picture presents.

Kitty Wells in "El Diablo."

In "El Diablo," a two-act "Mustang" drama on the program, a girl of tender years captures the villainous mountain terror and furnishes a climax to an intensely dramatic story.

Kitty Wells plays the part of the girl while Jack Richardson, photodrama's most popular villain, has the title role. Lisette Thorne, who is well known in Fresno, appears in the drama.

George Ovey, in "Making Things Hum," rounds out the mammoth program offered today.

FANNY WARD INTO THE BREACH OF STOCK MARKET

In a thrilling New York stock market play, with Chas. Clary, Fanny Ward makes another success, in "Each Pearl a Tear," at the Kinema today

Pulsating with the game throbbing excitement that pervades the stock market and which fastens itself on the men and women who play the market, this latest Lasky featuring Fanny Ward, "Each Pearl a Tear," will be shown at the Kinema today and tomorrow.

In the Right Place At the Right Time

Often we have known of circumstances when the least effort, the smallest amount of money, the slightest bit of knowledge would have swung the whole chain of events one way or the other.

Thus it is in this well worked up play, in that clever Chas. Clary has so managed everything that the market, the social world, and even Fanny Ward are about to fall into his hands.

However, in every crooked deal there must needs be a flaw, and at the auspicious moment this develops and Fanny Ward, seizing upon it, smashes back at Clary with his won pearls, brings a tremendous avalanche down about his head.

Twilight Sleep for Men and Women

Although at first announced that women only would be admitted to Twilight Sleep, it has been since decided that the interest stirred up among the men was justified, in that they could get much of value and instruction from the film, and special performances will be given Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights after the regular performance starting at 10:30 p. m. Men only will be admitted.

The "Women Only performances" will be Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday mornings at 10, 11:30 and 1 p. m. The regular show going on at 2 p. m.

Undoubtedly doctors have gotten brilliant results from the use of Scopolamin, and others have failed, which indicates that there must be a reason, and this is just what this film and the remarkable lecture of Mrs. Yeager brings out.

Nurses will be in attendance to take care of any invalids who might wish to take advantage of the presentation.

GETTING GOOD TEETH.

Dr. Gibbs of England tells us that 85 per cent of the teeth are carious, at least in highly civilized countries. The percentage among native races is only 5 per cent, while the Maoris of New Zealand have only 1 per cent carious teeth.

Decay in teeth is not exactly new. Occasionally a tooth showing decay is dug up in some prehistoric ruin. While this is true enough, we find that among the earlier peoples decayed teeth were the exception and sound teeth the rule. Among present day people the rule is reversed.

It is the opinion of most experts that not all the brushing and washing will serve to reverse our rule. They help, but they do not go far enough. The same criticism applies to school dental clinics. Dr. Ottolengin of New York insists upon that point. He says that there are not enough dentists in any city to clean and fill all the teeth of school children of that city, even though each dentist gave to it all of his time.

The far reaching remedy which Dr. Gibbs proposes—and I think most physicians and dentists agree with him—is that decay is due to improper diet, and the remedy is to change the diet. The time to begin is in the first few days of life. The baby must be breast fed, since breast fed babies develop better jaws and teeth than bottle fed babies. The next time for a change from present methods is weaning time, or the time to prepare to wean.

The size and shape of the teeth suggest that the baby should gnaw and tear. Comparative anatomy shows that the shape of the jaw and teeth is a most accurate index to the food of an animal. The plain teaching of comparative anatomy is that a baby should gnaw bones and bite on hard toast, zwieback, and such foods. The instinct of the babe points in the same direction.

When the child gets a little older he should have meat, both lean and fat, and hard foods which require much biting, gnawing and chewing.

"The pap-fed child quickly becomes a bolter and will grumble if he has to eat a crust."

More important than what to eat is what not to eat. Above all, children must not be allowed to develop a sweet tooth. The less candy they eat the better teeth they will have. It is very much better for them to eat hard baked oatmeal cakes and hard cooked cereals without cream or sugar than to eat the porridge, gruel and other soft kinds. Children need either sweets or fats, but the need, as between the two, is interchangeable. If a child over 15 months and older is given plenty of butter, gravy and fat meat he will not crave sweets.

To clean the teeth of a child chewing hard food is superior to the toothbrush and dental floss. Eating fruit, and especially apples, furnishes needed sugar in a wholesome form and cleans the teeth very satisfactorily. Especially is it advisable to close the evening meal with some mouth cleansing food rather than a porridge which soils it.

No Cause For Serious Worry

Mrs. R. P. M. writes: "My baby is now two months old and a natural fed baby. I am a strong, healthy woman; have plenty of milk and it seems very rich. But baby's stomach has never been right. It is sour and the milk passes off in waste curds. My doctor tells me there is nothing to be alarmed about; that my baby's stomach must grow accustomed to the milk. He also advises me not to nurse her oftener than every two hours, and only ten minutes at a time. I have been very careful to follow his directions. I give her a drink of water containing some lime water between every nurse. She has gained about seven ounces per week since two weeks old. But she is bothered with colic a good deal.

"I am careful about my own diet. I take coffee for breakfast, cocoa for lunch, and milk for dinner. I also take lime water. I do not eat any vegetables that I think could affect her in any way. Baby has seldom over two or three passages a day, and more frequently only one. I give her Fletcher's Castoria."

REPLY.

I cannot see that you have anything to worry about. Your child is thriving. I think you can safely increase the intervals between nursing to three hours, and before long to four. When you nurse her less frequently she will spit up her food less and have less colic. I do not think ou should give her limewater nor that you should drink it. Plain water is better. I think you can overcome her constipation with orange juice and therefore that you should not give her so much castoria. You can eat about any vegetable you wish.

Probably Not Neuritis

E. N. writes: "What is the cause of neuritis? Is it a blood or nerve trouble? I have it all over me, first one place and then another. My feet have been troubling me, the pain extending to ankles, heels, and toes. I have been a great sufferer from colitis also for three years, although I am much better. I have been told by best physicians it was a neurotic condition also. I thought perhaps my neuritis might be due to intestinal absorption. I do not take dope for pain; only mineral oil, which has done a great deal for my neuritis."

REPLY.

Neuritis is due to infection. It is not a blood disease. It is an inflammation of a nerve and in that sense is a nerve disease. I do not think you have neuritis. In neuritis the pain sticks in one nerve. Your pain jumps around. You have neuralgia. Neuralgia and colitis are often associated.

Lillian Russell's Beauty Talks

THOSE WHO ARE WEARY.

(Copyright, 1916, by Lillian Russell.)

A time comes, irrespective of our occupations, interests or amusements, when the sense of utter weariness, an intolerable tiredness, sweeps over body and brain and leaves us incapable of the simplest duties. Sometimes this is due to actual ill health, to some organic malady that only the physician can remedy, and the wisest thing to do when one gets into that desperate state is to secure medical advice promptly.

In many cases, however, it is caused by energy wasted in some direction, that seemingly has been no strain, but has created a leakage of vitality.

There is a social friction in modern life that wears away the energy of woman and men so gradually that for a long time it is scarcely noticeable. It is only when the nervous irritability and profound weariness appear on the surface we realize what we have lost.

The individual world has gained much by consistent conservation of energy, and yet man is most prodigal with his own vital nervous energy. The body machine which gives happiness and health and upon whose smooth-running life itself depends, is allowed to speed and speed and produce nothing.

We are all living too rapidly, we work too hard and play too hard. When we feel the reaction from overwork, we seek excitement instead of rest, and waste more energy when we

LUMBER KILNS AT CLOVIS DRYING RAISINS

Steam Heat and Electric Fans Used to Save Grapes

Many Growers Erecting Dryers; One Has 130,000 Trays Unstacked

CLOVIS, Oct. 8.—Artificial raisin drying on a large scale draws many interested visitors to the large steam dry kilns of the Fresno Flume and Lumber Company located here. The twin kilns hold about thirty-five tons of raisins on trays, the growers bringing the trays loaded on orchard trucks and flat wagons and transferring them rapidly from the conveyances to the big lumber trucks, which, when loaded to a point about eight or nine feet, are run into the kilns on iron tracks beneath which coils of steam pipe are laid from end to end of the large buildings. When the houses are filled, the kiln doors are closed down, the steam heat forced up to about 120 degrees and the electric fans set in motion to assist evaporation. The time required to dry the grapes depends of course upon their condition. It is expected that with turned raisins from the field, that twenty-four hours of artificial heat at 120 degrees will put them in safe condition to remove and stack on the ranch, where they can be boxed when ready. Raisin grapes half dry and half green will require a longer time in the steam kiln to evaporate the extra moisture.

Many Build Dryers.

Quite a number of growers are building dryers at the vineyards and arranging to put their undried raisins through as fast as possible. John Kovacovich has 130,000 trays of raisins in the vineyards unstacked. This crop represents a heavy loss if the weather continues cool and cloudy. It is agreed that there will be many tons now on paper trays that will go to the wineries or for hog feed and a large percentage that will be classed second-grade raisins by being rained upon, so that a very heavy loss to the growers appears to be inevitable. It should be noted that the lumber company is giving the use of the big dry kilns free.

The green grape shippers have resumed and are sending out a considerable quantity of Malagas, which are as yet uninjured, but how long they will be exempt from the ravage of mildew remains to be seen.

Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Sikes of Los Angeles are guests at the ranch home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stickles at Red Banks.

SCHOOL GROUNDS TO BE IMPROVED

MARICOPA, Oct. 8.—The School grounds around the Maricopa grammar and high schools will be greatly improved for the coming year. If plans which are now being worked out are carried through. Many citizens and members of the school board, as well as children attending school will be asked to start the campaign toward planting trees and flowers as well as shrubs around the school grounds to further beautify the new high school building and the grammar school by giving each a foreground and background of greenery.

At present the school grounds are bare of trees or shrubs of any kind and several citizens are interesting themselves in the matter that another winter should not pass without some trees and flowers being planted. The members of the school board will take the matter up at a meeting to be held in the near future and a plan will be decided upon for the purpose of securing trees and other things to plant.

Mr. Moban of Stevenson Creek reports that the little village is going along nicely.

Mr. Lambern is connected with some printing establishment in that city, where they will make their future home.

Reports say up to date the raisins have done very little damage to the roads in this vicinity. A few slight washouts occurred, but nothing bad enough to prevent teaming of any kind.

The paperhangers have just completed the interior of the Big Sandy schoolhouse in old town and although somewhat small for the number of attendants, presents a very neat appearance. The scholars seem to appreciate it very much.

Mr. Tally and wife left during the week for San Francisco, where they will remain ten days or more among old friends and acquaintances. Mr. Tally is master mechanic in the S. J. & E. roundhouse at this place and has worked steadily for over a year. He thinks a short rest and recreation would benefit his health, hence the trip. His shop-mates and other friends all wish them a pleasant and enjoyable journey and a safe return.

J. Crawford from the vicinity of Jose Basin was in Auberry Thursday.

W. W. Barnes, who runs a sawmill above Cutler Meadows, was an Auberry caller during the week. He stated that business was good and the mill running full handed. He intends to keep the mill moving until the snow prevents him.

Mr. Cobb of near Clovis was shaking hands with his numerous friends in Auberry last week. Mr. Cobb is a candidate for the office of supervisor of this district, running against Mr. Lathhead of Fresno.

Mono Woman Dies at North Fork, at Close to 100 Years

CLOVIS, Oct. 8.—The death at North Fork last Wednesday of Tu-su-ut, one of the oldest Indian women of the Mono tribe in the knowledge of the missionaries, removes an object of awe and veneration among the Indians for many miles. She recalled the great shower of meteors which occurred in 1833 and said that at this time she was a young, unmarried woman. It is believed she was about 95 years old at the time of her death, and she frequently chanted the Latin chants taught her by one of the early Spanish friars who did mission work among the Indians in the early years of the century. She was buried from the home of her grandson, Jack Norris.

YOUNG GRAVES WINS FARM CLUB CONTEST

Grows 1,250 Pounds of Potatoes on Quarter Acre

KERMAN, Oct. 8.—Ralph Graves, a member of the agricultural club of the Kerman union high school, has been declared the winner in the potato growing contest conducted the past summer by the club. Graves will receive for his reward a trip through the eastern states, in company with more than thirty other winners of contests of various kinds held by the high schools of the state. The boys will leave Berkeley October 15 for their trip.

Seven members of the local club competed for this honor. Each planted one-quarter acre of potatoes, cared for same during the growing season and harvested the crop. Graves planted 100 pounds of seed, irrigated once and received 1250 pounds of potatoes. His net income from his crop was $22.25. G. H. Wolfe, W. C. Ficklin and L. L. Swonger acted as the judges during the contest.

Ranch men in the land of Kerman are using every means possible in order that they may be able to save part of the raisin crops that have been caught by the late rains. Several ranchers have constructed drying sheds and others are turning and handling the raisins as much as possible in hopes of hastening the drying. It is estimated that more than half of the crops are on trays and that about 25 per cent of this amount will be a loss.

KERN COUNTY HAS 20,000 ENROLLED

Women of County Take Interest in Coming Election

BAKERSFIELD, Oct. 8.—Registration closed yesterday afternoon with a heavy rush of voters, bringing the total registrations up to more than 20,000 for the entire county, according to a conservative estimate. Both the wets and the drys were active in the last few days getting out the voters. The women particularly have been registering heavily since the first of the week. At Taft, Maricopa, McKittrick and in the oil belt nearly all the oil workers have been registered. There is intense interest in the oil fields over the election of a congressman, the district having so much at stake in the way of remedial legislation which the present congress has not yet passed.

The supervisor fight is between Supervisor J. M. Bush and Stanley Abel. The latter is now touring the entire west side district. In the mountain district registration has been very good as it always is on presidential years. In the Bakersfield district where James Wagy and H. I. Upman are the opposing candidates for supervisor the campaign is expected to warm up the coming week. Both men have many friends.

The political outlook in Kern county on president gives the Republicans a lead in the registration but the Democrats are trying to offset this by making stringent efforts at organization. Col. R. M. Roberts who was in retirement and who has directed most of the successful battles waged by the organization, was brought forward from his retirement and placed in charge of local Democratic headquarters. He will be assisted by J. R. Williams and Wallace Watson.

The Republican campaign is being directed to organization work for getting out the voters on election day. A. W. Mason, chairman, and B. R. Fitzgerald, secretary of the Republican county central committee, together with W. W. Kaye, member of the State Republican executive committee, have been touring the county with W. W. Phillips, candidate for congress. They reported the outlook was bright for a heavy Republican vote. Both the Republicans and Democrats are claiming the county by 1,000. Four years ago Wilson carried it by 1,200.

The local Socialist organization is holding meetings but the Socialist vote is not expected to be heavy this year, unless there is greater activity in the ranks.

The Prohibition party vote probably will be light, the voters of the dry faith dividing their support between Wilson and Hughes.

The raisin situation is mighty dubious. None of the growers seem to know just what their losses are going to be. Some of the earlier picked muscats were nearly ready to pack and now are pretty thoroughly moulded. The later pickings, which are more or less green, many having not yet been turned, stand a better show, but the best any grower hopes for is that his crop will not be a total loss.

Ed Caldwell is back on the job driving the big gasoline truck for the Standard Oil Company after hunting two weeks in the high Sierras. Ed says he shot a big appetite every day.

Garden planting is the order of the day at present. The belief is general that there will be moisture enough until cold weather.

CHOWCHILLA

CHOWCHILLA, Oct. 8.—The U. S. Farm Land Company has a crew of men at work extending the sidewalks two more blocks on Robertson boulevard. The street light will be extended accordingly after the cement walks are laid. That, with the building of the approach where the same boulevard connects with the state highway, comprises very important town improvements made by the company within the past few months. It is expected the county will make similar improvements along the park property, which is now a county holding.

The party of five Japs from Dinuba, who wrecked their automobile a few miles south of town Sunday, got away from here Thursday. The intervening time was given to doctoring up bruises and cuts, and getting new parts for and repairing their car. They were on their way to Stockton.

Mrs. R. G. Cornell and sister, Miss Dubuque, left the first of the week for a visit at their old home at Berkeley.

Five new families have been added to the settlers of the Chowchilla colonies within the past week.

The San Joaquin Valley Sugar Company has informed the farmers that if they will plant 1500 acres of sugar beets this fall the company will locate an inspector-superintendent here and do business with them. More than one-half the required acreage has been pledged, and the assurance given that enough others are ready to join the project to make it go.

The oldest Californians here say they never saw so much hail in this country in one day as fell here Tuesday afternoon. Yet no large amount of damage has been reported from the surrounding district. The rainfall so far this season at Chowchilla has been 1.54.

DODGERS WILL GO INTO FRAY TODAY DETERMINED TO REVERSE CONDITIONS

Fresno Republican Scoreboard Will Keep the Fans Posted as to How Every Play Happens on Braves Field This Afternoon

At 11 o'clock today, Fresno time, either Hy Myers or Jimmy Johnston will step into the batter's box on the Braves' field at Boston on the second game of the great world's series, and ten seconds after Jimmy or Hy have done something, the fact will be chronicled and played on the big Player Scoreboard of the Fresno Republican, now in place on the corner of the Republican Building, Tulare and Van Ness.

Today will mark the second battle of the Red Sox and Dodgers for the baseball supremacy of the world, with the Red Sox with the ace in the hole.

For today's battle, the dope sheets say that veteran Jack Coombs and Jack Meyers should be the battery for the Brooklyn Dodgers, with Babe Ruth and Bill Carrigan at the points for the American League champions.

Going over the reports of the battle on Saturday, the Red Sox squeezed through on the long end of the score and that was about all. The wise men of the game like Charles Van Loan, Tyrus Raymond Cobb, Damon Runyon and others make no beans in saying that the Red Sox had the best of the breaks of the game, with all the fortunes of war against Uncle Wilbert.

Among those present was Hughie Fullerton, called the clairvoyant of baseball because he fails always to give the right dope on a game, and Hughie, who saw nothing but Boston all the time and said they'd win by a score of 5 to 1, again went wrong.

Away off here in dear old Fresno, 3000 miles from the seat of war, we baseball fans have to read the Associated Press accounts of the game and from them draw our own conclusions. These conclusions show us that the Dodgers have to be beaten yet and beaten badly and hard before Carrigan and his men cut up the long end of the spoils.

Glance at the box score of the first battle and the tale is told of how the Dodgers came like a grass fire in the final inning of the game and almost—that's the word—almost carried off the palm. Boston's big men—Lewis, Hooper, Walker and Gardner—lived up to the expectations of the fans. Brooklyn's big men—that is, Jake Daubert—fell down fiercely in the pinches and Jake went up in three pinches. Can any of us suppose that Jake is going to stay in the booby class throughout the rest of the series. No, siree, and today we all look for Jake to break into the limelight and be a real hee-ro.

And Jack Coombs? Somehow few of us can see Jack Coombs in another big series, but Jack evidently deserves a chance, for all season he worked hard enough to help keep the Dodgers on top or up near the top. And then there is the Rube for a "come." Also Pfeffer and Cheney and Rucker and Smith.

And in the meantime Brooklyn has to face Ruth and Leonard and Mays and maybe Shore again.

Verily, it is a tough old war the players are in and whichever bunch gathers the 60 per cent of the kale will tell us for many moons to come that they earned every nickel of it.

And remember the Fresno Republican is covering the series in an up-to-the-minute style and every play, every move of the big games will be played on the Player Scoreboard, beginning at 11 o'clock, Fresno time, as long as the series last.

Confident Boston Backers.

BOSTON, Oct. 8.—The Boston Americans and the Brooklyn Nationals will renew their battle for the world championship at Braves Field tomorrow when they meet in the second game of the series. Every player was reported on edge tonight by their respective managers and eager to renew the conflict.

Brooklyn, nothing daunted by its 6 to 5 defeat on Saturday is preparing to reverse the decision in Monday's game and thus return to their home park on even terms with Boston. The weather forecast for tomorrow is for a clear day.

Those who witnessed the opening play claim to have seen nothing that aroused fear that the record of unbroken victories for the Boston team in past world's series is to be upset this season. They strengthen their opinions by willingness to wager 2 to 1 on the outcome of the series.

Neither team practiced today, the players resting at their homes, or at the hotels.

The chief topic of conversation and argument among fans was based upon the choice of pitchers for tomorrow's game. It was the concensus of opinion that Carrigan would send either Ruth or Leonard to the mound for Boston, while Robinson would counter with either Coombs or Pfeffer. In either case Boston will have a southpaw in the box against the Superbas, while Boston will be called upon to face a right-hander, since Brooklyn played its best left-hander when Marquard was worked on Saturday.

There is a wide difference of opinion among baseball magnates here regarding the reason for the falling off in attendance at Saturday's contest as compared with the games played here a year ago, there being 6,000 less than the opening game here last fall and five thousand less than the second contest.

One explanation is that many fans made no attempt to attend upon the supposition that there would be no chance of getting inside the park owing to the huge crowds that were believed to be storming the grounds. Another is that the world's series is no longer a novelty in Boston where four have been held in the past five years.

Another puzzling feature was the rather apathetic bearing of those who were present. One magnate advanced the opinion that this was not due to any lack of interest in the game, but came about as the result of the composition of the crowd. He said:

Was Five Dollar Crowd.

"It was a five dollar crowd, and by that I mean that it was composed to a great extent of persons who are accustomed to attending the theater, opera and like amusements and who express their approval or interest in a rather mild manner from the baseball stand point. Many, too, were not the close followers of the game and the play in its intricate places went over their heads."

The Brooklyn players do not think the Boston system of a run at a time will prevail against their heavy attack, and what has imbued them with confidence of victories to come is the pitching of Ernest Shore. Manager Robinson says that all his players remarked that Shore did not have much on the ball except a bit of a fadeaway, which seemed to puzzle Jake Daubert more than anyone else.

While manager Robinson would not say who his hurler would be for tomorrow's game, it was said that either the veteran Coombs or Jack Pfeffer would be used.

Janvrin came in for much praise today for his playing, substituting for Jack Barry, who is out of the game with an injured hand.

The Boston infield was very steary, accepting 34 of the 35 chances offered, while Brooklyn accepted 19 out of 22.

The batting of the two teams was heavier than a casual glance at the score would indicate. Brooklyn had a total of fourteen bases and Boston fifteen. In the ninth inning Brooklyn had ten men at the plate.

The probable line-ups for tomorrow's game:

Brooklyn — (National) — Johnston, r.f.; Daubert, 1b.; Myers, c.f.; Wheat, l.f.; Cutshaw, 2b; Mowrey, 3b.; Olson, s.s.; Miller, c.; Coombs or Pfeffer, p.

Boston—(Americans)—Hooper, r.f.; Janvrin, 2b.; Shorten, c.f.; Hoblitzell, 1b.; Lewis, l.f.; Gardner, 3b.; Scott, s.s.; Thomas, c.; Ruth, p.; Leonard, p.

CLASSY PROGRAM FOR BOXING FANS OF TAFT

Promoter Bert Brown Signs Up Several Clever Millers for Next Show

TAFT, Oct. 8.—Probably one of the best balanced cards that has ever been seen in Taft will be shown at the Blaisdell next Thursday night when Promoter Bert Brown will pull off the first boxing event of the coming fall and winter. Brown is well known in Taft, having managed two affairs of recent date and the fans have not forgotten that in each of these he kept his word and gave them fights that spelled class in every event.

Some of the boys have been seen here before and have conducted themselves creditably. For his headliners he has secured Fred McManus, a 130-pounder of Los Angeles, and Johnny Oliver of San Diego, who is said to bear all the earmarks of a coming champ in the lightweight division.

Lloyd Davies, who recently fought Billy Alvares here to a draw, has been selected to meet Heinie Booz in the semi-windup. Davies is a scrapper from the word go, and the boy who is to meet him is said to be equally aggressive.

Then there is Kid Mexico, who after a very successful trip to the southland, where he met some of the best boys in the game and defeated them, will be pitted with Kid Henry of the southern city.

Tony Ross and Billy Moore, both of whom have appeared here in former fights, are selected to meet each other in a four round preliminary. Both are willing mittmen and will be sure to furnish lots of entertainment.

Kid Frenchy, another boy well known to Taftians, and Danny O'Brien, a newcomer, will complete a very interesting card.

Jockey Burke has been chosen to referee all the bouts, and as he is well versed in every angle of the game, will no doubt give complete satisfaction.

OLYMPIC ATHLETIC CLUB HAS COMPLETED CARD FOR NEXT BOXING SHOW

Twelve Well Matched Youngsters Will Supply Six Four-Round Contests

An exceptionally classy card has been arranged for the Olympic Athletic Club by Matchmaker Johnson at the next boxing night of the association next Friday evening, October 13. Six pairs of boxers, each in a class by himself, have been signed up and all indications point to some excellent fisticuffs. There is no real main event on next Friday's program for the simple reason that one pair of boxers is just as good as the other. Gene Cline, one of the fastest little men developed by the Olympic Club, will meet Joe McIvor, one of the best little boys in Fresno. Tony Ross, who always gives a good account of himself, will meet reliable Jim Marcus. Joe McGurk, Fresno's champion lightweight, will take on George Kendall, and both boys being of the slashing type of millers, should make the fur fly while they are in the ring. Bob Wells, who comes with a top notch reputation, will meet Frankie Williams and Harry Gates will meet "Dutchy" Burns. The other contest will bring "Snowball" Carter and Frank Robinson into action, and those who have seen these two boys in action say the bout will be a hummer.

Charley Cline will supplant Arthur McAfee as third man in the ring and being familiar with the game should amply fill the shoes of the former club referee.

JAPANESE WRESTLERS ARRANGE BIG TOURNEY

Many Champions Will Contest at Show to Be Staged in Honor of Emperor's Birthday

Japanese of Fresno are planning a big sports program to be given on the birthday of the emperor, which will be October 30. As a preliminary to the program to be offered several contests at wrestling were staged at the Fair Aerdome last Friday afternoon. Among the invited guests were Chief of Police Goehring and Sergeant Wickstrom and several officers of the law. The show was run in a first-class manner and the talent was gathered from surrounding towns. Among those who took part were Nistuka Noda and Asahigawa, both champions. Nishikanada and Asahigawa, both champions of Tokyo, wrestled for the championship of Fresno, the honors falling to Nishikanada.

The committee in charge of the tournament to be given on the emperor's birthday is hard at work completing details and promises one of the greatest shows ever given in Fresno.

Over 2,000 witnessed the contests last Friday afternoon.

WATCH FOR THE BEST NEWS OF SERIES IN FRESNO REPUBLICAN

Monday, Octoer 9.—That's today, and the Boston Red Sox, winners of the American League pennant, and the Brooklyn Dodgers, winners of the National League pennant, will meet in the second game of the great baseball classic to decide the championship of the world.

If you are a fan, you will want the best news and all the news on this great struggle for baseball supremacy. The Fresno Republican will satisfy your every desire.

Then there will be the big player scoreboard on the corner of the Fresno Republican building, where every play of the games will be set before your eyes. This board is the last thing in scoreboards and cannot be improved upon.

It is all up and ready for action, and all the fans have to do now is to reach the Fresno Republican building in time and there see the big series play for play, exactly as they will happen in Boston and Brooklyn.

*Byrds and Weilheimers played one tie game.

William Carrigan, the pilot of the Red Sox, and your Uncle Wilbert Robinson, high mogul of the Brooklyn Dodgers, have nothing on one H. Stallings Coffee when it comes to winning championships. H. Stallings, who resembles said Wilbert in size as well as being possessed of a world of baseball lore, carried his animated Stars to victory in the second game of the double header at the ball yard yesterday and thereby held onto the lead in the Fresno City League.

Mr. Louis Weilheimer's newly bedecked Stalwarts were the opponents of the animated Stars and his outfit gave H. Stallings' boys a tough fight of it. H. Stallings, though, sent the only tally of the game over the rubber and in the very first inning at that. As runs win ball games, H. Stallings is the big chief in baseball circles this morning, that is if we eliminate said Bill Carrigan and said Uncle Wilbert.

In the first battle of the day Frankie Witt and his Doughboys put the skids under the Byrds and hopped into second place.

Following is the way the boys performed with the war clubs in both battles:

AIR CRAFT EXPECTED TO SHATTER RECORDS

MUSKOGEE, Okla., Oct. 8.—Under ideal weather conditions six racing balloons, manned by pilots who have figured in numerous previous international contests, ascended here today in an aerial derby which it was predicted would set a world's record for both distance and endurance. A light breeze sent the big bags in a northwesterly direction as they were lost to view in the gathering haze of evening. Nearly five hours after the start, two unidentified balloons passed over Vinita, Okla., 100 miles north of Muskogee.

Mobley, doing the mound work for the Reds, struck out 8 and allowed 4 hits, while Ossie Ball, working the last two innings, was touched up for two singles. The score:

White showed superior ring generalship for twenty rounds and had the contest been limited to that period he would have won on points, in the opinion of fight fans. Orchard's staying qualities manifested themselves after the twentieth round while White began to weaken and in the thirty-second round the former navy champion scored a clean knockout.

THE TRUTH ABOUT TANGUAY

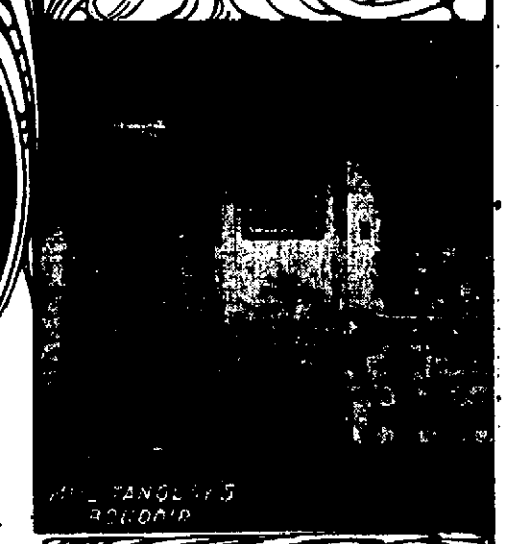

DUAL PERSONALITY OF AMERICA'S FOREMOST ECCENTRIC COMEDIENNE WHO, IN HER OWN HOME LIFE, IS QUITE ANOTHER PERSON FROM THE RESTLESS, NEVER-CAN-KEEP-STILL MADCAP THAT DRAWS THE LARGEST SALARY EVER PAID TO ANY PERFORMER ON THE AMERICAN STAGE

TANGUAY IS THE APOSTLE OF THE LAUGH

A GLITTERING COVERING OF BRILLIANTS

THE GUEST CHAMBER

DUAL individualities are rare, so rare, indeed, that when one turns up in real life the newspapers and periodicals consider it worthy of their most serious attention. On the stage, in fiction dramas and in comedies there have been many such characters—characters who were now a Dr. Jekyl and anon a Mr. Hyde—but in real life, out of the world-of-make-believe, out of the pages of fiction, there have been few authenticated cases of double personality.

The ancients had their mythological god, Janus, who possessed two faces, (and we in this day have many friends whom we consider two-faced), but examples of men or women who combine within themselves two or more distinct types of character are, as has been asserted in the beginning of this article, so rare as to justify even this conservative journal in devoting one entire page to the truthful and always vibrant story of Eva Tanguay, who is one person on the stage and quite another off of it.

Miss Tanguay has been more talked about, perhaps, than any other human being in the wide world. Even the great publicists, men of affairs, heroes in war and peace are in the public eye but transiently; while Miss Tanguay, the madcap, the cyclone comedienne, or whatever you wish to call her, for at least half a decade has been continuously the most conspicuous figure in the newspaper prints and magazines. She has been gossiped about, and, perhaps, falsified about, more than any other contemporary person. Paragraphers have accepted the word of scandalmongers and scandalmongers have fallen back on their own imaginations to weave fanciful stories of Eva the eccentric, Eva the erratic and Eva the erotic. They have linked her name with a score of sensational escapades and, indeed, they have evolved enough fiction about this one tempestuous, temperamental little woman to crowd the most voluminous book of fairy tales. And that's where all of them belong—between the covers of fairy books, perhaps sometimes unfit for the nursery and always unfit for belief-by-a-sane people.

More Fascinating Than Fiction.

The truth about Eva Tanguay is stranger than fiction and it has been far less discussed than the fables which have been mouthed about and sometimes put into cold type. But Eva Tanguay is, nevertheless, in contradistinction to all these tales of imagination, a girl with a dual personality. On the stage she probably justifies the words of a noted critic, who called her "an inspired insanity." She is never still an instant, and from the tips of her tantalizing toes to the mass of woman's crowning glory which falls helter-skelter about her face and neck she is always all a-tremble—a quivering, quaking, human form, intelligent in every atom, sensitive to the finest degree, emotional to the fullest possibilities of a highly organized nervous system. That is the Tanguay whom the public knows—the Tanguay who, in a short time will sing in this city those peculiarly fitting, fascinating, frivolous songs about herself, which have aided in establishing for her the reputation of a madcap genius, an inspired insanity.

Tanguay in Her Home.

It is the other Tanguay, quiet, nerve-poised, self-contained, domesticated Tanguay, the Tanguay of the home, of which the writer wishes to speak. It is this Tanguay whom the public does not know, whom they have never seen and of whom they have never read.

Miss Tanguay has one of the most charming homes in America at Seagate, New York, that bit of famous Coney Island which has been cut off from the noise and the hurrah that is usually associated with that resort, and which has been made into a private and restricted park. At the end of it, within a few yards of the beach and under the shadow of the famous Norton Point Lighthouse is the Tanguay home. The entire front is a sun parlor which faces the ocean and in this quiet abode, with the vista of the limitless sea, the cyclonic Eva, strangely enough, finds her greatest inspirations. When she is in this home of hers she is the presiding hostess; a hostess as careful and circumspect in her attention to every detail of house-keeping as any housewife in all the land. And when she is away in the distant cities entertaining the public, her sister, whom she has raised from babyhood, is in charge of the establishment. There may be more expensive homes, as there doubtless are in New York, than the Tanguay home in Sea Gate, but there is none more safe and sane, more complete in all the little details which make for home comfort, than this dwelling place of the cyclonic comedienne.

One enters the library from the front of the house and has a splendid view of Central Park. The room is carpeted with a georgeous oriental rug in subdued tones of red and gold. The furniture is solid mahogany upholstered in red Morocco leather, and the mahogany bookcases, carved with the deftness of the cabinet-maker's art, contain a collection of rare books on every conceivable subject; for the girl who skips about wildly, even madly, upon the stage with apparently never a serious thought, is indeed much engrossed in good literature and has gathered about her exquisitely-bound volumes, editions de luxe, of the best classics in the world of letters.

The library opens into a large bedroom, with walls done in lavender and gold. The splendid brass bed is overhung with a quaint old French canopy and coverings of fleecy white, which exactly fit in with the Marie Antoinette furniture; and on a polished maple floor is a beautiful and almost priceless tiger skin 14½ feet long. The boudoir connects with a music room, in which the concert grand piano and all the furniture are of mission design. It is a carefully appointed room and shows many evidences of an artiste's finer touch. Everything that the science of acoustics can do to produce perfect tonal effects has been done in this studio, and there Miss Tanguay spends many of her happiest hours among her close friends of the artistic professions.

In the "Den" of a Madcap.

Passing through the long hall, with its walls of soft green tints and carved ebony furniture, one reaches the room dearest to the actress's heart. It is her den and looks almost like the sanctum sanctorum of a dramatic critic, for the walls are covered with Tanguay photographs in every conceivable pose and size, and there are souvenirs, books, newspaper clippings and many other evidences of her work and study.

Herein lies one of the secrets of the Tanguay success. She is a clever business woman, despite whatever the gossips may say about her prodigal habits. A hard worker, a good manager, a careful housekeeper, Tanguay is prudent rather than prodigal—a woman of brains rather than the eccentric, irrational character the public believes her to be. She has both copyrighted and capitalized her personality—her stage personality—and yet she is more entertaining and interesting, if that is possible, in her home than upon the stage—a fact which is due maybe to the surprise one gets in finding Tanguay so different, so diametrically opposite, so antipodal a type from that which we know her as a public entertainer.

In her dining room, as elsewhere throughout her luxuriously furnished home, there is refinement and good taste. Sideboard, buffet, china closet, chairs, table, plate rack—all are in solid mahogany heavily and exquisitely carved. Beautiful silver plate, candelabra and the choicest of cut glass and fine china are to be found here. Over the square table hangs a coverlet of delicate lacery in the center of which is a huge mirror and above a cut glass bowl always filled with flowers. A Turkish rug of silk, in a dazzling and delightful combination of oriental colors, covers the hardwood floor.

Here in this home one gets an adequate idea, the only clear and rational idea, of the real Tanguay—the Tanguay who has won her way by dent of perseverance, ceaseless energy and vaulting boundless ambition. The girl who came into the world the daughter of a French physician, who was a dreamer more than a moneymaker, and of a Canadian mother who was careful and frugal, left alone in the world with a baby sister to care for—it is this Tanguay who faced the world and fought off adversity and won success. Beginning at the first rung of the ladder in an amateur night performance at a cheap little theare in the town of Holyoke, Mass., when her widowed mother, her baby sister and she had taken up their home after the death of her father, Dr. Tanguay, she climbed the ladder rung by rung, passing through all the stages of theatrical gradation, from repertoire shows to musical comedy, the chorus, to small parts, to her first big hit in "The Chaperones," to her initial starring engagement in "The Sambo Girl," and then, arriving at the top rung, the distinction of being the highest paid vaudeville performer in the whole world—that is the evolution of the little girl who made her debut in a black silk gown fashioned by her own hands from a castaway covering of a decrepit umbrella, did a sailor's hornpipe with the nimblest of feet and sang a song in a childish, squeaking, strident voice.

Hasn't such a girl a right to be proud—a right to claim her well-won place among the foremost of American artists?

Her Gorgeous Costumes.

Tanguay's sartorial finery disregards the dictum of French fashions and makes their most extravagant expression plain, modest and homelike compared to her ornate costumes. The cynosure of all eyes, feminine as well as masculine, in the Grand this week, the dazzling brilliance of her garments will vie with the electrifying magnetism of her personality. To call them all frocks would be to leave out of one's calculations altogether those marvelous costumes so characteristic of her, which are sometimes skirtless. She has expensive and thoroughly original gowns, designed by her own hands and turned out by the world's leading modistes. In one song she wears a one-piece garment, high in the neck, long in the sleeves, reaching to her ankles, and all over the pink silk foundation a heavy network of genuine coral beads. They were cut into fantastic shapes and set in embroidery of wondrous design. This dress cost $2,000, and though it weighs more than 40 pounds, it did not tend to diminish the nervous energy, the restless spirit of the erratic comedienne. The coat of mail which she wears while singing the song, "Oh, You Money," is a brown leather jacket, covered all over with Lincoln pennies. Each of these pennies has a metal backing and is stamped to the garment by means of a rivet. It is a very picturesque affair, resembling the armor which ancient knights wore in battle. It contains more than 3,000 pennies and weighs 50 pounds.

Ten trunks are required to hold the Tanguay costumes which will be required for her performances in this city.

Tanguay is a business woman as well as an artist, and that's another queer combination. You don't often find that. See, I told you Tanguay was different from anybody else, and that proves it.

"Of course," she said, referring to the original topic, "success on the stage means giving the public what it likes, and while in the main it is true that that is one of the things anybody can find out ahead of time, there is no gainsaying the fact that the public likes to be amused. People generally have enough tragedies in their own lives, enough worries and cares, without having to be afflicted with the agonies of the stage. You know very well it isn't your idea nor mine of spending a happy evening by going to see some play in which some terrible problem of life or death is thrashed out with its intermittent tears and heartbreaks. All the world loves to laugh just as 'all the world loves a lover,' and the laugh that lasts longest is the laugh that leaves a lingering trail of sunshine. When we pay our good money for diversion, we want to be diverted, and that is why people flock to see any kind of a comedy or farce that is halfway clever. It also explains the phenomenal success of vaudeville. Something gay and lively that makes tired people forget for an hour how jaded they are and gives them a real incentive to laugh away their cares—that's vaudeville and that's what the people want."

The peculiarity of Miss Tanguay's songs makes it necessary that she rehearse assiduously for there are many little quirks and twists and turns in her ditties, especially in the way she individualizes them, that cannot be gotten down on the score, and have to be conveyed by the singer to the players either by gesture or word of mouth. Tanguay is an artist at this sort of thing, and her pantonsime is quite as illuminating as her vocal instructions are clear and comprehensive.

She is a woman of extraordinary attainments, say what one may, and has won more people to her standard than any other performer on the American stage. This is said advisedly, for Eva Tanguay has the distinction of holding the attendance record in every large American vaudeville theatre. That's a record to be proud of, and that's the record which has brought her the highest salary ever paid to a single performer in vaudeville.

She Talks About Personality.

"Personality"—is the title of one of Eva Tanguay's songs, and it is the one word with which she explains the secret of her phenomenal success on the stage.

"Nobody knows what that word means," she said the other day. "I don't know and you don't know, but it means all the world to me. Whatever it is, I've got it. I guessss that intangible something that makes Eva Tanguay Eva Tanguay and positively unlike any other person in the wide world."

She screwed up her face into an expression of preternatural wisdom and her expressive eyebrows knit themselves into thoughtful repose.

"It seems egotistical," she continued, "to talk about oneself, but, you know, I have a song called 'Egotistical Eva,' and since people believe I think pretty well of myself why should I remain silent about my own virtues? That certain something which, for want of a better word, we have called 'personality' enables me to do things in a way that nobody else can do them, and it seems the public happens to like that way. That's all there is to it.

"For," she continued, with perfect frankness that is eminently characteristic of the eccentric diva, "as a matter of fact I am not a beautiful woman. I cannot sing in the sense that other performers sing. I do not know how to dance and, perhaps, am graceful, but you know I am doing very little dancing on the stage these days. Yet I am a headliner in vaudeville. I get the largest salary, by the way, that has ever been paid to any woman except Vesta Victoria, who got it only for a short engagement, while I have held the salary for a long time and expect to continue. When the day comes that I lose my vogue, I am going to quit the stage and retire to private life and raise chickens."

Miss Tanguay is a woman of extraordinary attainments, say what one may, and has won more people to her standard than any other performer on the American stage. This is said advisedly, for Eva Tanguay has the distinction of holding the attendance record in every large American vaudeville theatre. That's a record to be proud of, and that's the record which has brought her the highest salary ever paid to a single performer in vaudeville.

Lillian Russell's Beauty Talks

should be stopping the leak and restoring the waste.

Rest does not mean complete idleness, although some women would be better off if they could bring themselves to cease their activities for a time and relax both mentally and physically.

A week in the fresh air, with no particular destination, no duty or distraction ahead—only quiet carrying along of the body while the lungs inhale the air deeply, is better than drugs for the mentally worried.

Moderation in all things is the real remedy for tired nerves and muscles. Moderate exercises, moderate diet, moderation in recreation, moderation in work, moderation in thought.

Utter weariness in most of us, is our own fault, and we are not deserving of sympathy when we whine about it, but we should instead be told sharply to mend our ways and nature will mend our shattered tissues.

The woman who prides herself on going to a morning musical, followed by a luncheon, does some shopping, takes tea at a fashionable hotel, returns home to dress for dinner and the theater, dances a little after the theater, is doing a great deal of labor. I do not understand how such women manage at all to keep any health. The mind of such a woman must either be a blank or her nerves give out in a very few weeks.

The personal contact with other minds continually is enough to bring down the stoutest-minded woman.

There is a way to go through the world and keep normal health and a normal state of mind. Conservation is the key to perfect health and beauty. One social engagement a day is sufficient. If a woman goes to a reception in the day, she should remain at home in the evening and retire before midnight. If she has an important evening engagement she should rest for an hour or two in the late afternoon. By conserving her strength she enables herself to meet all kinds of persons cordially and graciously without permitting them to draw from her vitality. You either give or take vitality from those with whom you come in social contact. By always being fortified with a rested, gracious presence you can give without draining your vitality.

The tired woman draws strength from every one she meets and they tire of her presence. There is nothing gained and everything to lose by rushing through the world, lest you should miss something.

The more you can rest and conserve your qualities for pleasure, the more pleasure you can take and give out to others.

It's a woman's duty to be charming, and it is impossible to charm when every muscle and nerve is fatigued.

CRUSADE AGAINST GAMBLING IN COUNTY IS LAUNCHED

Parlier Den Raided by Sheriff Thorwaldson; Arrest Nine

ANTI-BARRICADE ORDINANCE ASKED

Declares Other Raids Will Follow; Will Fight Injunctions

A campaign against Chinese gambling in the smaller cities of the county was launched into Saturday night by Sheriff Thorwaldson, when he battered his way into the Sam Yick building in Parlier and arrested nine players. Today the sheriff will appeal to District Attorney McCormick to see if arrests can be made of owners of buildings who allow barricades to be erected on their property.

Many of the players escaped while Thorwaldson and a squad of constables battered in the front and rear entrances to the building with heavy sledges. Going into a basement, the Chinese worked their way through underground passages, to an adjoining building and by secret exits made their escape to the street. Today Sheriff Thorwaldson will swear to a complaint against a Chinese said to have been the game keeper.

In addition to confiscating gambling paraphernalia and lottery tickets, two opium pipes and a quantity of opium were found. The Chinese arrested were charged with gambling and a few hours following their arrest were released on a $1500 cash bond.

"This raid was not one of those spasmodic descents upon a gambling joint, resulting in the arrest of a few Chinese for gambling," said the sheriff last night. "It is the beginning of a direct and active campaign against gambling of every variety in the county. It is my intention to put a stop to the so-called 'necessary fan tan houses.'

"I intend again to raid the Sam Yick building the moment I know that gambling has been resumed. I intend to keep up the raids until every den is closed up tight.

"Further than that, I hope that I will be able to arrest the owners of buildings who allow barricades to be made against the officers, for the purpose of concealing gamblers and offering them protection from arrest.

To Fight Injunction

"In the event that they attempt to enjoin me through the courts, I will try and prove that gambling does exist, and in that manner fight the issuance of any restraining orders on this office. Should the Chinese attempt to obtain charters for so-called 'improvement societies' and with this as a blind, endeavor to obtain the sanction of the courts for protection from the officers, I intend to fight the issue in the highest state courts, if necessary."

Those arrested by the sheriff's squad of officers are Ah Chung, Joe Fook, Ah Lee, Lung Chin, Ching Lee and Fong Roy.

In case it is found that property owners cannot be arrested for allowing tennants of their buildings to erect barricades against the officers, Sheriff Thorwaldson will endeavor to have a county ordinance passed making it a misdemeanor for the owner of buildings to allow any barricades to be constructed within their property.

The raid was made by the sheriff, six deputies, Constable Campbell of Sanger and Constable Sayre of Parlier.

The Chinese will be given a hearing before Judge Scofield of Parlier either today or tomorrow.

WOMAN IS ARRESTED AS RECKLESS DRIVER

Officer Says Fair Motorist Did Not Observe Traffic Laws

For the alleged reckless driving of her motor car and for refusing to stop after she had collided with another machine, Miss Louise Weber of this city will today appear in police court, charged with careless driving.

The complainant will be Patrolman Murphey, who alleges that he succeeded in arresting the woman only after he had followed her for several blocks.

In his report, the officer says that Miss Weber crashed into the motor car of Henry Johnson, at I and Fresno streets. Neither machine was badly damaged. Johnson had the right of way and had signaled that he would make the turn. Not heeding the warning, Murphey alleges the woman "cut in" ahead of Johnson, striking his motor car.

Officer Murphey arrested Miss Weber at O and Fresno streets and cited her to appear in police court today.

Do You Notice Something Very Neat About These Glasses?

The absence of screws and the use instead of little beveled studs gives a touch of distinction and class in either eyeglasses or spectacles.

Good appearance is only one of the great advantages of KeeLock mountings. The lenses are cemented in. They can't come out, loosen or crack as they do when metal screws are used.

It won't take long to explain the KeeLock to you and show samples. You'll be very much pleased.

REPUBLICAN USING PLAYER SCOREBOARD FOR WORLD'S SERIES

Today will usher in the second game of the big series for the baseball championship of the world, the Boston Red Sox meeting the Brooklyn Dodgers on Braves field, Boston, with the game starting at 11 o'clock, Fresno time. Despite that Fresno fans are 3000 miles away from the seat of war, they are offered an opportunity to witness the series under the auspices of the Fresno Republican on the big Player Scoreboard on the corner of the Republican building, Tulare and Van Ness.

The opening game of the series was played on the big scoreboard to the delight of 4000 fans and it was voted the biggest and best thing yet to be used in Fresno to show how the players acted in the big game in Boston.

Those same conditions will be again carried out today.

Fact is this scoreboard is the last thing in scoreboards. In realistic miniature every play as it happens in the big series will be shown on the board.

All you have to do to see the world's series just as good as if you were right there is to reach the Republican building in time to pick out a good spot. You can watch the great games without cost.

It is not like standing on tip toe to look at the bulletin board and straining your eyes to see what is doing.

The board is big enough and the figures and letters are plain enough to be seen from a distance of 300 feet.

The board will be right on the corner on the balcony and can be easily seen from every angle.

Besides it gives action. When the pitcher throws a ball or a strike the white pellet actually moves. When a hit is made the ball flashes across the diamond. The runner starting for first base, is seen to move from base to base.

A special wire direct from the seat of war to the platform under the supervision of an expert operator will bring in every play. Then a corps of well trained baseball men will start the board and everything that happens in the game will be shown on the scoreboard and then megaphoned to the crowd.

Verily, the Fresno Republican scoreboard is the last thing in scoreboards.

Remember the first details will commence to arrive at about 10:45 o'clock, Fresno time, and ten seconds after the umpires give the word to play the game the Player Scoreboard will be in operation chronicling and showing every play exactly as it happens in Boston.

RELIEF GIVEN WINE MEN; TEMPORARY REGULATIONS

Indemnifying Bond Must Be Given by Shippers

Business Has Been Tied Up in East by Government Tape

SAN FRANCISCO Oct. 8.—Troubles that have confronted the California wine men in paying their Federal stamp taxes have been adjusted by Secretary G. W. McAdoo along lines suggested by Internal Revenue Collector J. J. Scott.

Senator James D. Phelan, who presented the case of the wine men to the Treasury Department, received a telegram yesterday from McAdoo explaining the temporary arrangement which he had communicated to Collector Scott. Secretary McAdoo's telegram follows:

Scott has been notified that pending regulations shippers and purchasers of wines must execute an indemnifying bond to secure payment of the tax which will be assessed against the shipper, but will be abated if the wines are stamped by the purchaser. This plan was suggested by the collector and was presumed to be satisfactory to the California wine makers.

The uncertainty as to the course to pursue arose from delay in issuing regulations under the new law and getting the necessary forms and other papers here for carrying out its provisions systematically.

Andrea Sbarboro, representing the Italian-Swiss Colony; E. M. Sheehan, secretary of the California Viticultural Commission, and Louis S. Wetmore of the California Wine Association went to Senator Phelan about it.

They explained that each cellar reports to Collector Scott the wines it ships out, the taxes to be assessed as soon as the records have been checked up, but that shipments have been tied up in the East by collectors who have been working under different instructions.

Under the new law the tax on fortifying brandy is cut from 55 cents a gallon to 10 cents and on dry wines from 8 cents to 4 cents.
